Challenge to live. To utilize time, to maneuver space, to employ energy . . . this is the challenge endowed by Life. Past, present, future . . . encounters. The warmth of parental love—the revelation of a book—the conviction in a dream. Time reveals the progression or degression of our thoughts . . . the sublime victory — or the forfeited dream. The utilization of past encounters and present endeavors cuts a pattern for the robe of a life. Time is as eternal as the ocean, yet swift as treacherous rapids . . . that unfailing drown the weak. To be strong . . . to maneuver space in the time allotted by life. To fill voids . . . in a mind, a relationship, a life. The space between a dream and fulfillment . . . utilized time and employed energy. Energy to combat the undercurrent that submerges the soft and slack. Space . . . an open field, an unbroken skyline, a deserted wasteland. Energy . . . a tractor impregnating an open field — a skyscraper dominating the skyline — missiles pervading a deserted wasteland. The vital element . . . energy. The compound lacking energy equals unproductive time and barren space. Time . . . midnight, space . . . pencil to paper, energy . . . concentration. Hours pass, the pencil moves, a manuscript evolves. The cards are not stacked, the deck is not marked; but it is an adroit game with rigid rules; winners adhere to rules compelling utilization of the elements —time, space, energy. The challenge . . . ever present . . . encompassing all . . . provoking. Route: mountain or by-pass? The challenge is yours.

TIME

Time brushes the campus with urgency, influencing pace towards tomorrow. The hands of the old clock edge surely on, ticking away the seconds, the classes, the years. Each tick so vital; time, our life's measuring stick. How was our time spent yesterday? The day before? We grasp at the elusive moments knowing all too well they soon will escape. Counting those days till finals, rushing to class, waiting for tomorrow. Check our watches; glance at the calendar. We are all clock watchers, watching the knowing hands approach the hour of our destiny. Then comes the reward for time well spent: the hour of achievement. Time progresses — broadening horizons, revealing rewards, opening the door to maturity. Listen to the peals of the campus chimes—they narrate the shifting scenes performed on the perpetual platform.

SPACE

Infinitesimal space presents unlimited opportunity at the threshold of new era. Man soars into space, attempting to conquer and organize. Ambition, courage characterize new generation. To keep in pace with rapid movement, Indiana University has adopted an expansion program which will create new departmental buildings, dormitories, organized housing. As one of the fastest growing campuses in the nation, Indiana, through enlargement and extension, offers opportunities for educational, social, cultural advancement. Looking up where limestone meets sky, looking out where emptiness becomes campus, one knows existence of space beyond comprehension. Realization, imagination, aspiration are expanded here. Growing, they create reality.

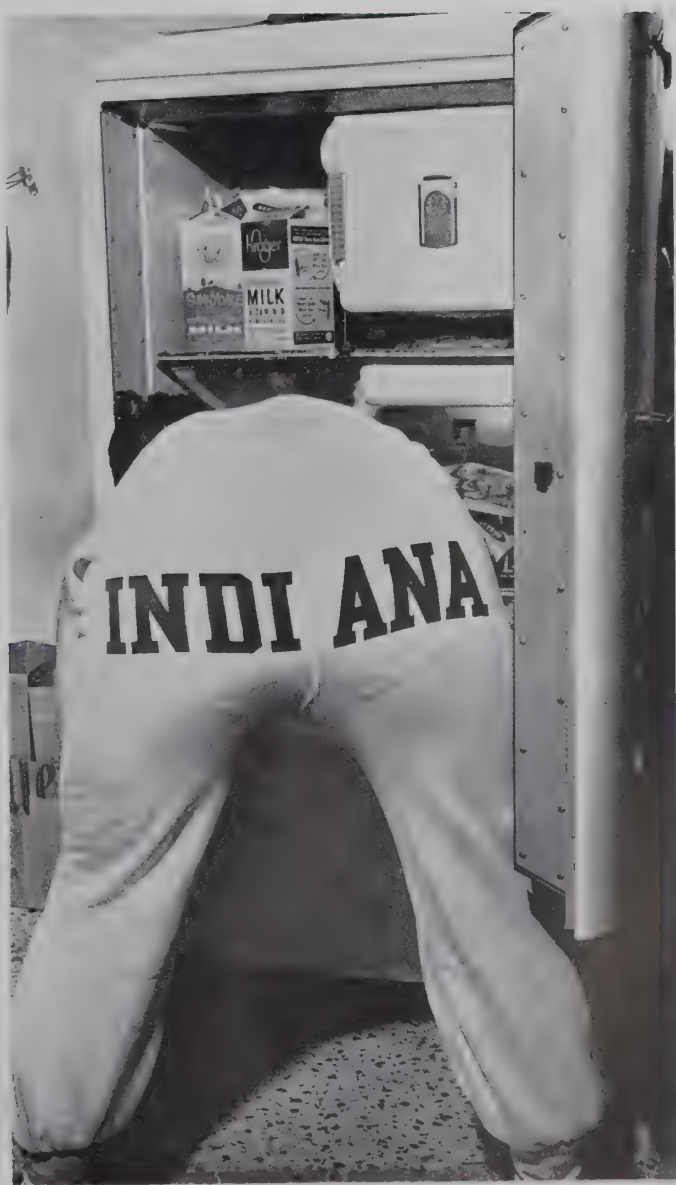

Energy moves the campus; pulsating beat of activity is the spirit, the essence of college life. Milling crowds between classes at Ballantine, ebullient vigor of athletic events, effervescent moods at dances typify animating force underlying collegiate routine. Work, study, relaxation—the jubilation, the quiet moments—all are integral pieces of moving mosaic that is the University. Energy accomplishes overwhelming tasks; it builds Fall Carnival booths, wins the Little 500, produces concerts and plays. Even during semester tests, when the flow of the life-force reaches its lowest ebb, the undercurrents of vitality are strong. Energy, the potent ingredient progenerating progress. Progress . . . infinite.

ENERGY

A YEAR IN RETROSPECT

Palatial Pomp and ceremony keyed Inauguration of Elvis J. Stahr jr. as Indiana University's twelfth president. Mortarboarded dignitaries, herald trumpets, academic procession around Showalter Fountain lent color and pagentry. Overflow crowds greeted the President and family with standing ovations. Dr.
Stahr, scholar, educator, athlete, is a former Rhodes Scholar, dean, and university president, and an award winning tennis master. Retiring President Herman B Wells aided in investiture of his successor with the symbols of the presidential office—mace, jewel, and collar.

POMP AND PAGEANTRY SPARK STAHR'S INAUGURATION

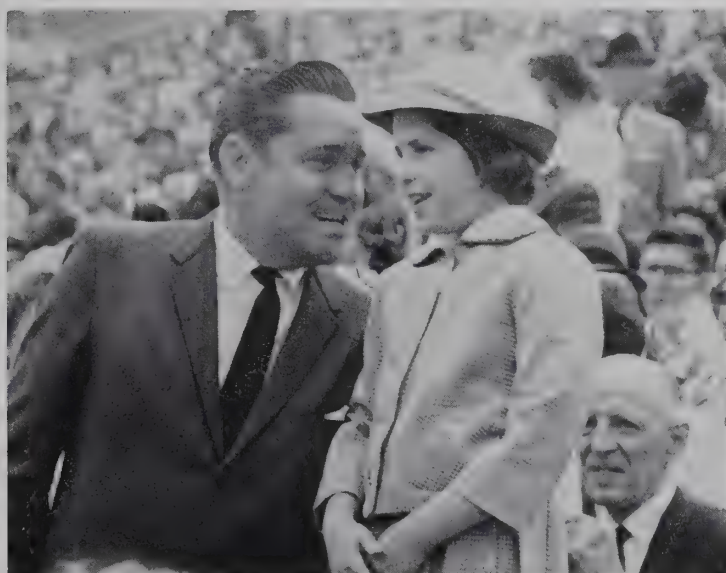

Dr. Lee Norvelle (far upper left), speech and theatre, parade marshal, carries mace, symbol of office. Distinguished Service Professor Henry Veatch (left) offers faculty congratulations before Chancellor Wells and Willis O. Hickam, President of the Board of Trustees (above), award symbols of presidential office. Two weeks later, Mrs. Stahr (right) proudly dances with her husband at Inaugural Ball.

STAHRs ARRIVE AND ESTABLISH ROOTS IN I. U. SOIL

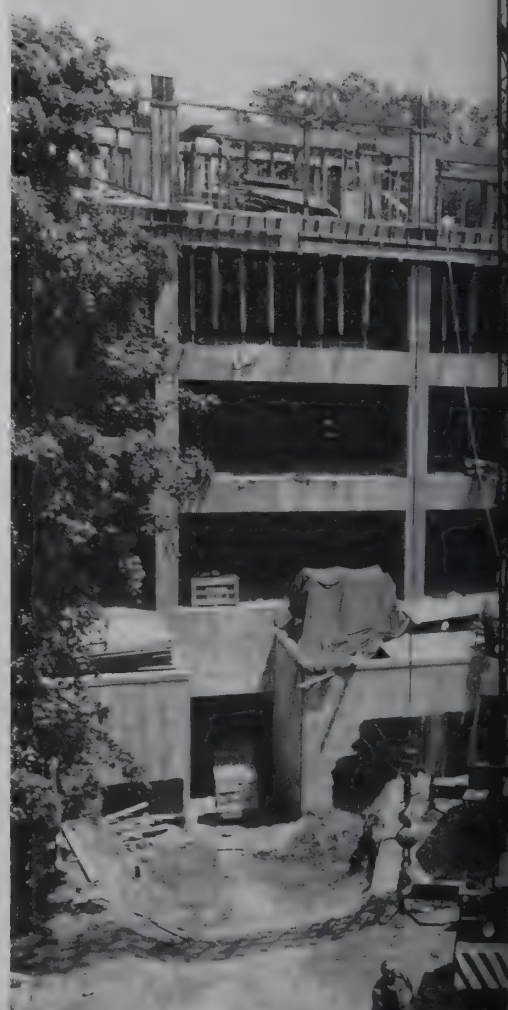

First Family finds adaptation to Indiana University campus easy as they settle into their prospective patterns. President Elvis J. Stahr jr. takes on task of piloting progress of University, while Mrs. Stahr transforms "White House" to tastes of new residents. Finding room for three active children, Stephanie, ten; Stuart, five, and Bradford, four, proved difficult, and Mrs. Stahr now has no guest room. First weeks on campus were busy; but Stahrs paused to celebrate double birthdays of Stephie and Stuart, and Dr. Stahr took advantage of occasion to test Stephie's new bicycle. Rugged pace as Secretary of Army in Washington, D.C., exchanged for challenge at the helm of Big Ten University, offers Indiana's twelfth president and family soil to grow roots in.

MUSHROOMING I. U. FIRST GROPEs THEN

Skyward trend alleviates space problem created by rapid expansion. Ballantine, tallest building on campus, will share skyline with eight-floor Chemistry addition to be completed in September. Graduate work including research in fluoride chemistry will take place in the air-conditioned edifice.

SURGES SKYWARD

Population explosion on I.U. Campus is counteracted by consistent construction. Influx of new students each year necessitates the construction of additional housing units. John W. Foster Quadrangle, six-building residence center on Fee Lane, will be equipped to handle 1,182 students. One-third completed at the advent of the Fall semester, the quadrangle will house four hundred and fifty women in the center building, which will include a library, main lounge, and a center recreation room. Four buildings will house seven hundred and thirty-two men and a sixth unit will provide dining accommodations for residents.

Dual additions to the University's growing expansion program, the new geology and psychology buildings, command new locations. The buildings will provide many needed laboratories and facilities for undergraduate and graduate research. Built to enable future expansion, geology building stretches six stories to the sky. The new seismograph station in the geology building will enable geologists and future geologists to measure the most minute earth tremors. Divided into three distinctive sections, the psychology building's front three-story wing will be used for teaching and clinic facilities and back four-story wing for research.

FROSH CAMP CAPERS CREATE ENERGY FOR

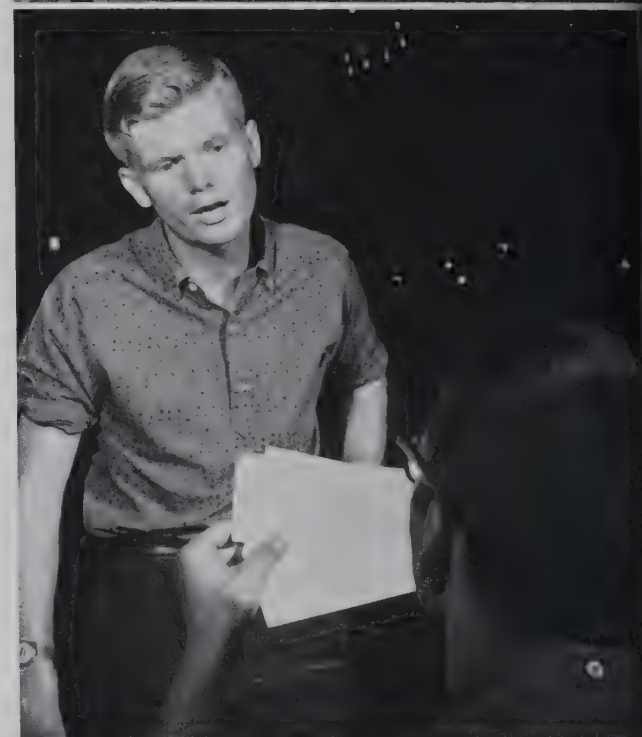

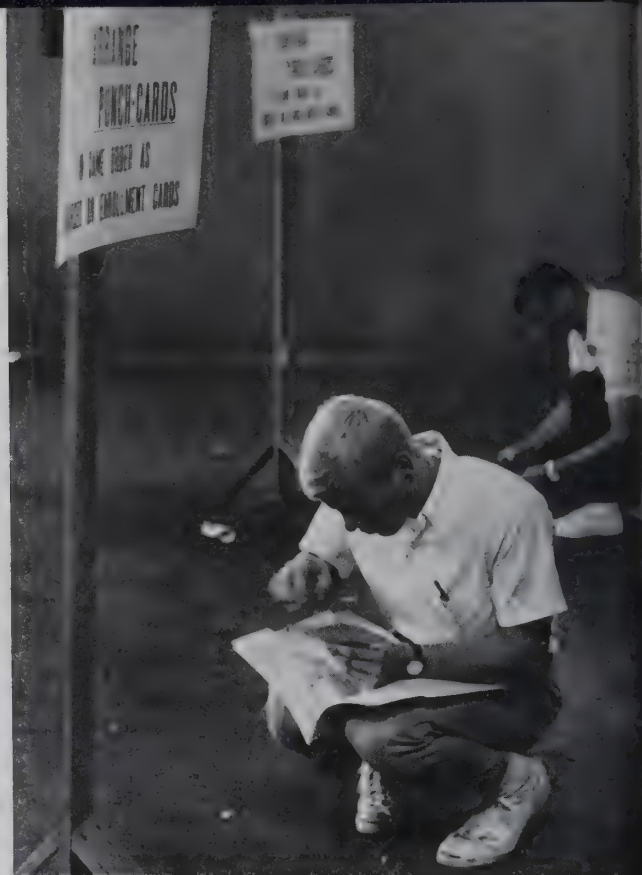

Preparatory to collegiate atmosphere, McCormick's Creek is unique locale for union of Freshman Campers. Chaperones, upperclassmen, and University officials set the mold for college grind. Panel discussions warn freshmen of the tender trap of campus social whirl. Campers exert pre-college nervous energy in frustrating tug-of-war (top). En-
boiler cools down under college pressures.

WEEK OF PLANS AND ACTION

Bewildered but eager, freshmen accept challenge of Orientation Week. Speeches, meetings, tests, lectures—student minds set awirl. "Venus Rising from the Sea"—at last, an established landmark. The campus map frames itself. Activities Night crowd disperses toward interests. Dean's advice, student leader's advice: mull it over, use it, or forget it. Roaming advances to purposeful progress.

STATIC LINES AND CONFLICTS STYMIE REGISTRANTS

Concentration is prime element in charting year's course. Infinite variations are possible. This is registration. Standing outside closed fieldhouse doors, student is finally allowed to enter. Clutching enrollment card, permit to register, and sundry other cards, an unaware student approaches ID picture machine (opposite, left). He prepares to smile, then learns the shutter has already snapped. Sorting orange and blue cards into same order as listed on enrollment card is an essential headache (opposite, center). Cards receive stamp of approval, dissolving panorama of panic.

CAMPUS GREET'S FALL

One, two, three swingin' season openers for 1962 were the Lambda Chi Open House (right), Delta Tau Delta Street Dance (below), and Sigma Chi Melon Mess (opposite). The Open House, with a "Get Acquainted" theme; Delt Street Dance with two bands and reigning mass confusion; the merriment of the Melon Mess—all played vital roles in saying "hello" to freshmen and superiors.

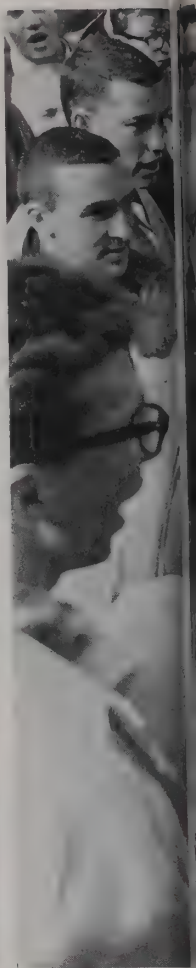

A CAMPUS WITHOUT PEOPLE—INANIMATE STAGE

Undercurrent vitalizes University . . . People contribute feeling, sentiment, sensation, mood to inanimate campus. The feeling contorting a face expressing test results . . . the sentiment of love . . . the sensationalism of the "twist" . . . the candid mood of boredom . . . the undercurrent of will to succeed.

Tidal wave submerges campus! Casualties, thousands; cause, registration. Masses descend on every phase of campus activity. Battling the mobs becomes commonplace, adjustment to teeming crowds is essential. Survival of fittest is a law quickly learned.

Rip tide . . . undercurrent labeled school spirit. The spirit encompasses all . . . and all are possessed with the bustle of basketball — fascination for football. Spirit lies dormant and explodes cream and crimson . . . as the band begins; the team hits the hardwood; the cheerleaders effervesce. Spirit alive . . . animation suspended in anticipation. Score! Jubilation reigns — atmosphere throbs with pandemonium. Force outweighs equilibrium — rip tide of spirit conquers complacency.

CAMPUS AND COMMUNITY

Harmony is the keynote in the circular three million dollar School of Music Building. Music folios and instrument cases are trademarks of aspiring musicians. Every music student is familiar with the stern judgment of a jury and long hours of practice in East Hall necessary before the deciding "trial." Recitals are required of students taking private lessons, and concerts are given by outstanding students. The rewards for hard-won achievement, however, are high. In the spring, twelve music students earned Fulbright Scholarships for their accomplishments.

APPLAUD I.U.'S SOUND OF MUSIC

Inspirational entertainment is offered in every phase of work by the I.U. School of Music. Stimulating performances in the variety of operas and ballets afford culture and beauty to the campus nightlife. The nationally renowned Berkshire String Quartet, which toured for a brief period this year with Benny Goodman, has resided on the I.U. campus since 1948; and the I.U. Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Tibor Kozma, often fills the I.U. Auditorium with the sound of music.

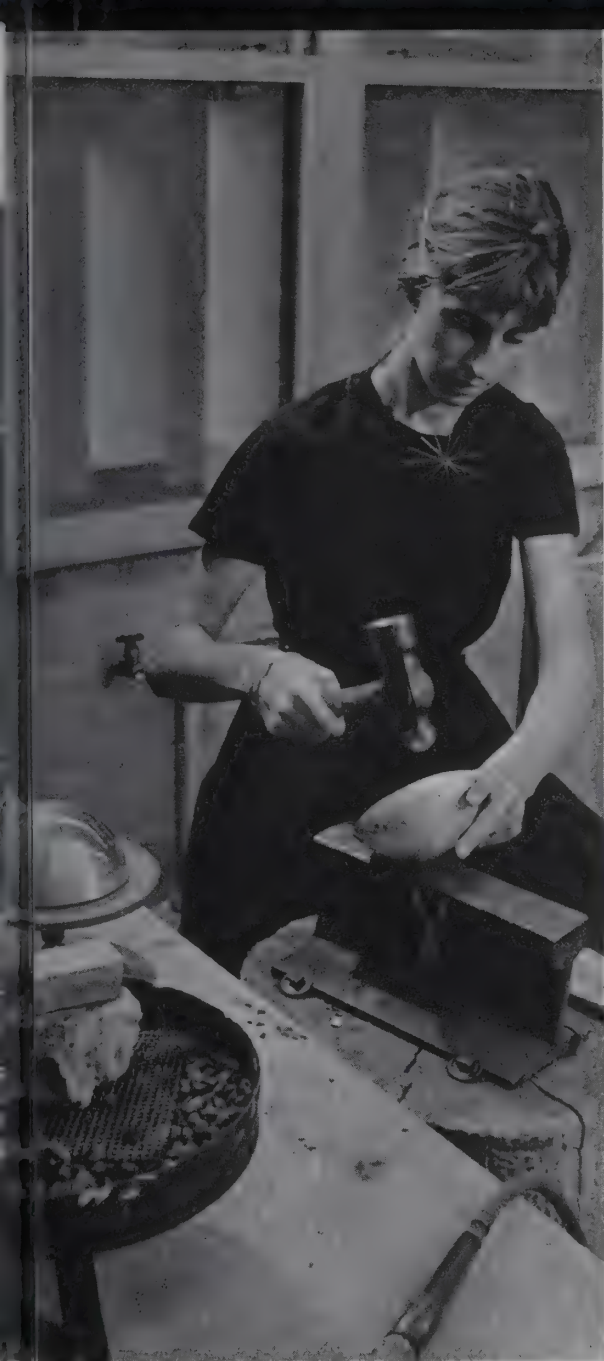

A COMBINATION TO SHARE

Combination, college and marriage, creates time, space, energy problem. Time and energy to clean house, bring up children, study, and go to classes are hard to acquire. Space rapidly diminishes as family grows. There are moments of relaxation—an entertaining card game with the neighbors or a joust with junior. When parents must go to classes, they can confidently leave tots in competent hands at the University nursery. Combination of lives . . . not an easy task for the couples.

FINE ARTS PLAZA NOW COMPLETE

Completing circle of culture, the Radio and Television and Fine Arts Building harmonizes with Auditorium and Lilly Library. The five-floor split level structure houses the 117-piece Sinkhovitch Collection of Greek and Roman sculpture. Workshops, studios, libraries, faculty rooms, and the museum offer to visitors, students, and faculty a valuable and comprehensive study of art.

Incessant Bustle dominates atmosphere of I.U. Memorial Union Building. Congregating in Commons or Kiva for a coke, studying in lounges, dining in the Tudor Room, Frangipani Room, or cafeteria, people find or create a variety of atmospheres. Bookstore, beauty salon, bakery, barber shop, and ride board provide indispensable services for I.U. students, faculty and guests. Elaborate hotel facilities accommodate guests from all parts of the globe; and conference rooms and banquet halls provide meeting places for organizations. Students working feverishly in student government offices, businessmen discussing financial problems in conference halls, dancers twisting to music in Alumni Hall . . . the gathering place for all . . . the Union.

CAMPUS CAMPAIGNS FOR CHARITY

Ecstatic enthusiasm of "Fun for Charity" echoed throughout Campus Chest Week. Student attitude toward campaign was reflected everywhere. In Indiana Memorial Union, impressive clown towered over entrance to Commons. In recreation rooms of housing units, workers began construction weeks in advance. Vivid pre-publicity posters, parades, and various demonstrations in front of Ballantine Hall formally announced themes for each booth. Through student endeavor and soliciting, more than $12,000 was presented to COPE (Committee On Philanthropic Endeavors). And the winners: Best overall game of chance, Sigma Chi and Alpha Phi, "Ghoulit"; best overall show, Lambda Chi Alpha and Pi Beta Phi, "The World of Woozie Song"; pre-publicity, Zeta Beta Tau and Chi Omega, "Tee Off."

Gala fantasy of dance hall girls, bright lights, and fast-talking barkers greeted guests. Raising money for charity, meandering crowds of students, townspeople, and children of all ages created cacophony in once-silent field-house. Crushing crowd created miniature combat and awesome decor amazed even the cognitive upperclassmen. Coeds donned Japanese wigs and make-up, counterparts became Romans and mad scientists. Faculty members became judges for Carnival's creativity. Ten tickets assured the coeds an hour's reprieve from pink slips. And everyone had fun —"Fun for Charity."

UNITY BINDS BROTHERHOODS

Brotherhood activities create enduring memories of pin serenades, sorority exchanges, campus events, and heated debates round a crackling fire. Home of green-podded pledges, omnipotent actives, traditional boresses, fraternity signifies diversity bound in common causes. Actives wonder how lowly pledges manage to hide silverware, sheets, and shoestrings. Pledges wonder how actives know which classes were skipped, who cut study table, and who has illegal dates at Commons. Pledges struggle toward unity and eventual initiation. Awaited ceremony elevates them to aspired rank of active and unites them in bond of brotherhood. They come as boys, leave as men, and never forget.

Friendliness, dignity, refinement—symbolic expressions of every sorority's aims. Working together on a variety of house projects and an active rush program, which genuinely attempts the acquaintance of rushees with Greek life through both casual and formal teas and conversation, sorority sisters unite in expanding bonds of friendliness. Many new contacts of varied and unusual interests heighten culture awareness. Above all, the sisters express personal dignity and individualism.

HARMONY AND RHYTHM BIND SORORITY LIVING

REUNITED IN SPIRIT, HOOSIERS HONOR ALMA MATER

Reunion, rejuvenation, and spirit mark honored return of I. U. alumni to campus Homecoming Weekend. Hours of frenzied preparation yield lavish decorations and entertainment. Parading floats and ingenious house decorations add to electric atmosphere; and, echoed in stirring rhythms of the Marching Hundred at the game, twist bands at the Blanket Hop, energetic pace rises to climactic height. Football, fast and fascinating, thrills frantic crowd beyond disappointment. All eyes appreciate as applause from admirers congratulates queen and court. Past memories are revived, future ones created.

AS 'JAWN PURDUE' SIZZLES, ECSTATIC HOOSIERS TOAST OAKEN BUCKET

Pseudo Funeral of "Jawn Purdue" evolved into reality as Indiana's Cream and Crimson walloped the Purdue Boilermakers. Old Jawn, carefully guarded by members of Pershing Rifle Corps, was rejudged and condemned to a torrid toasting in blazing bonfire in annual pre-game pep rally. Vehemence devoured hysterical crowd as Old Jawn's soul soared from fervid flames. Peggy Dickens (left) leads crowd in "Moo Moo Purdue" song satire as I.U.'s version of the Golden Girl, Dave Huston (left), strutted on stage. Students and team ended pep rally, victory in mind, spirit in heart . . . goal in sight.

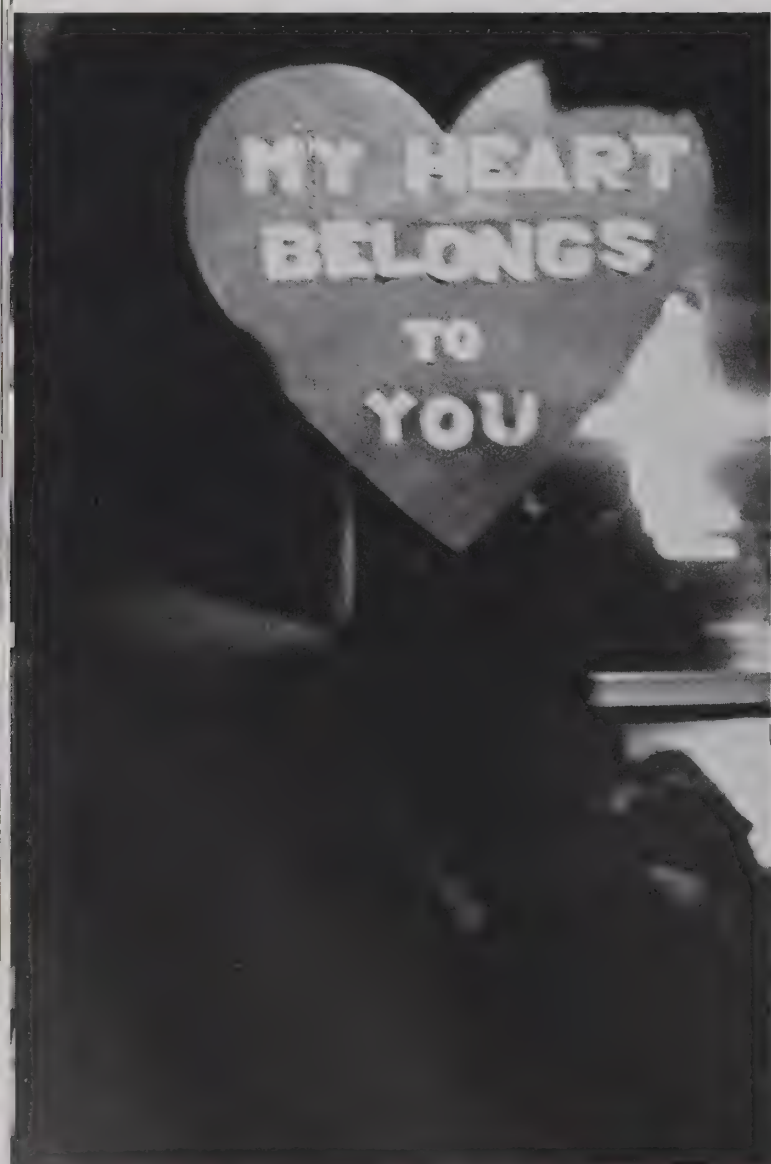

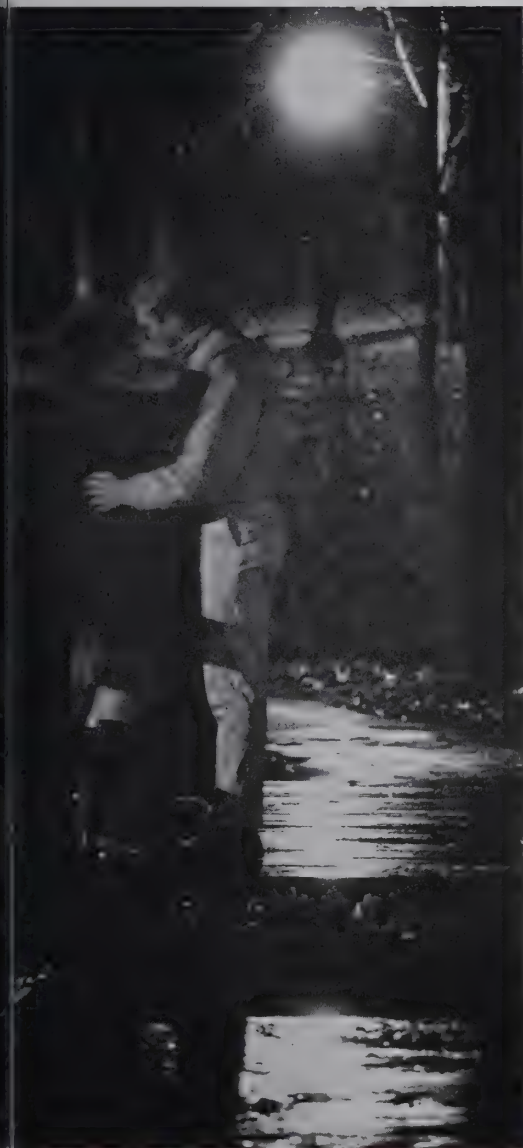

Traditional booty of Old Oaken Bucket was claimed as victory-starved Hoosiers posted a 12-7 score on Purdue's scoreboard. Old Oaken Bucket series, begun in 1925, continues to arouse amicable rivalry between schools. Cohesive team spirit coupled with intense desire to win spurred Phil Dickens' underdog Hoosiers to victory and game marked end of fourteen-year Boilermaker supremacy. Post-game jubilation resulted in Coach Phil Dickens' (top, far left) loss of wedding ring as he was hoisted on the shoulders of hysterical Hoosiers. Tranquility settled briefly amid locker-room din as victorious team paused for customary post-game prayer. Team captain, Nate Ramsey (left), shares platform with coveted Oaken Bucket at victory celebration in I.U. Auditorium.

TIME IS FOR TWO, TOO

Moments to Remember are the special times, the dating times. Together we cheer the team to victory, chat over a coke in the Commons, stroll quietly by the fountain, visit the wellhouse by moonlight. We walk slowly, counting the moments together till hours—and goodnight.

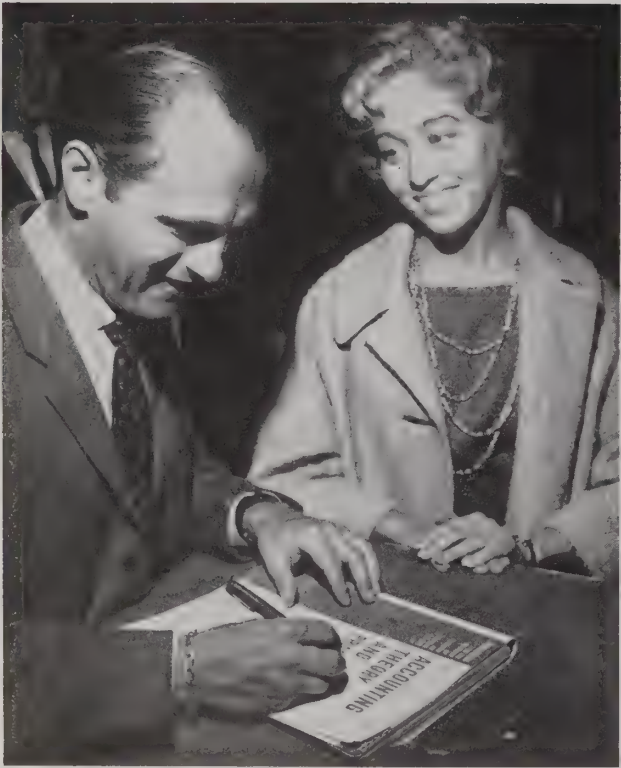

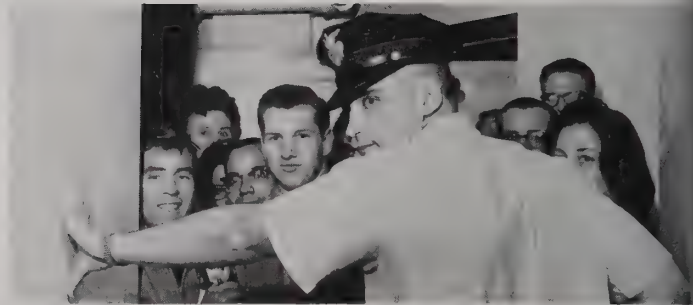

CAMPUS ENJOYS THEATER

Spotlight was focused on many skilled artists at I.U.'s Auditorium for the modern limestone edifice is the cultural and entertainment center of the campus. The sixth Celebrity and twenty-third Auditorium Series included a variety of programs for student and faculty enjoyment. The "Singing Trapp Family" from the "Sound of Music" captivated capacity audiences with "Do, Re, Mi." Gay songs and bright scenery brought the glamour and excitement of a "Carnival" to the Indiana stage (left, above and below). Audience witnessed the transformation of a Cockney flower girl into a Cinderella in the popular musical comedy, "My Fair Lady."

Variety of cultural and entertaining events is offered to interested I.U. students. Shakespeare favorites from seventeen plays were enacted by well-known performers Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans. The "Evening of Shakespeare" opened the twenty-third annual Auditorium Series, and the traditional folk material of the versatile "Limeliter's" climaxed Dad's Day on campus. The popular folksong trio was an Auditorium "special." The clever routines of comedian Bob Newhart delighted the campus. Souvenirs of events presented by the I.U. Auditorium and Celebrity Series are collected by coeds, and impressed students get Helen Hayes' autograph (left, below). The complete stage production of Verdi's "Rigoletto" was presented by New York City Opera Company (below).

Laughter fills frosty air, snow blankets campus paths, red and green beacons signal arrival of Christmas. Study-weary students shake book blues and adopt seasonal spirit. Recreating a sixteenth century English atmosphere, the beautiful Madrigal dinners provide six nights of feasting in Alumni Hall. And then — "Twas the night before Christmas" at the Christmas Eve on Campus dance. Elves and snow princesses welcome merrymakers while the "Queen of Queens," Carol Moore, reigns over the pre-season celebration.

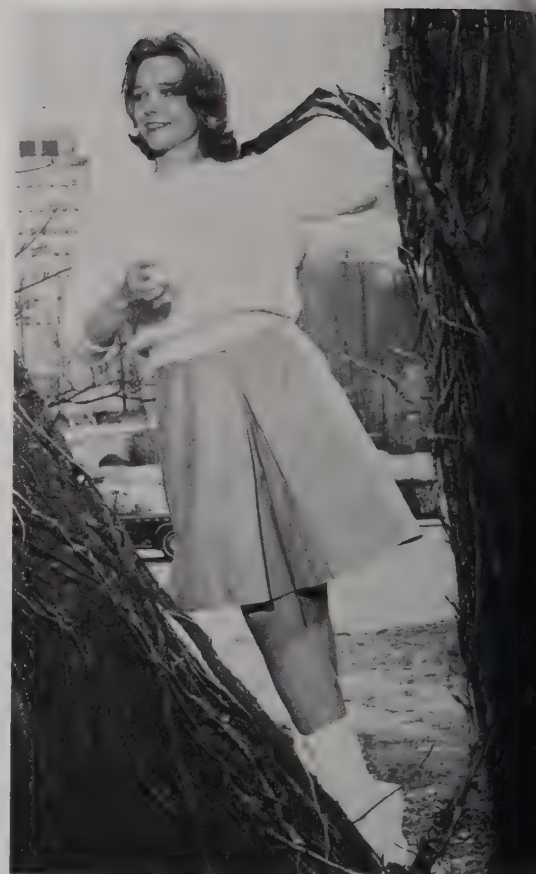

CHRISTMAS ON CAMPUS

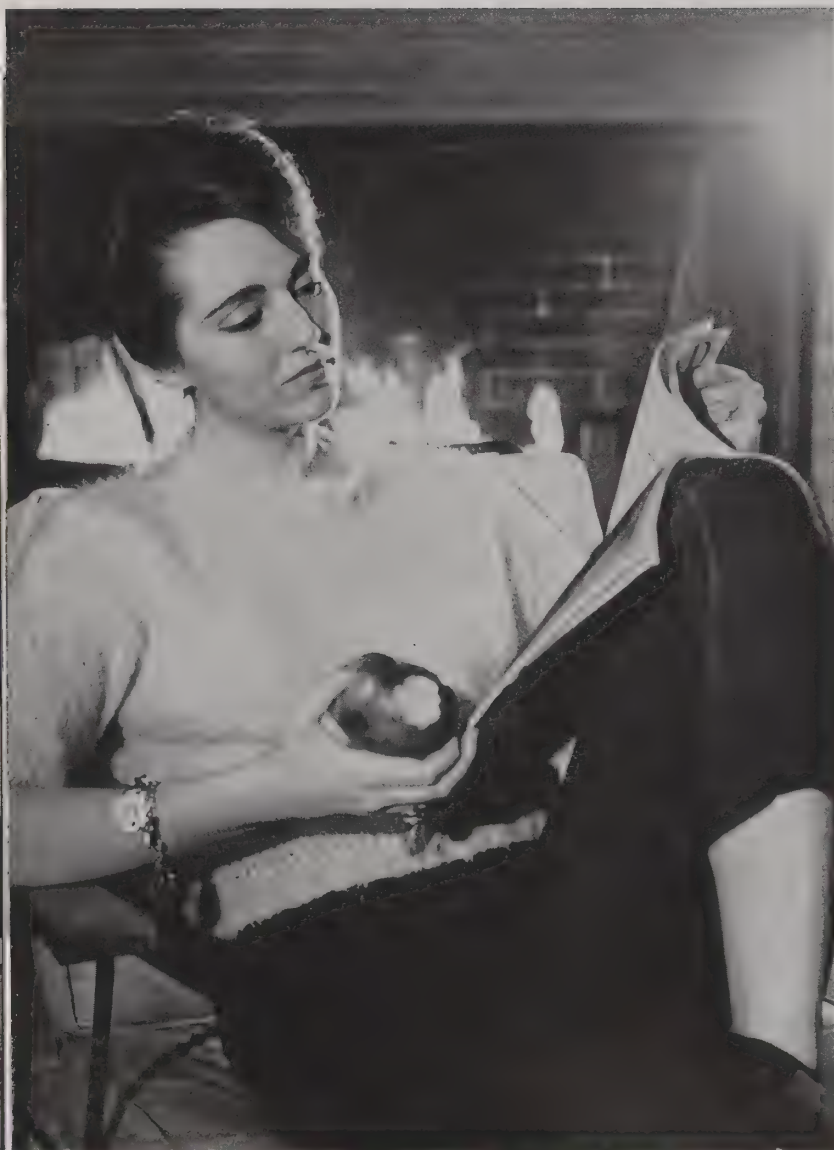

ARBUTUS QUEEN

Carol Lee Moore, junior, received the 1963 Arbutus Queen crown at Christmas Eve on Campus. Miss Moore, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, entered the contest with one crown already to her credit, that of 1962 Cream and Crimson Queen. From Rushville, she majors in English. All coeds who hold campus queen titles are invited to enter the contest along with girls nominated by housing units.

CAROL MOORE

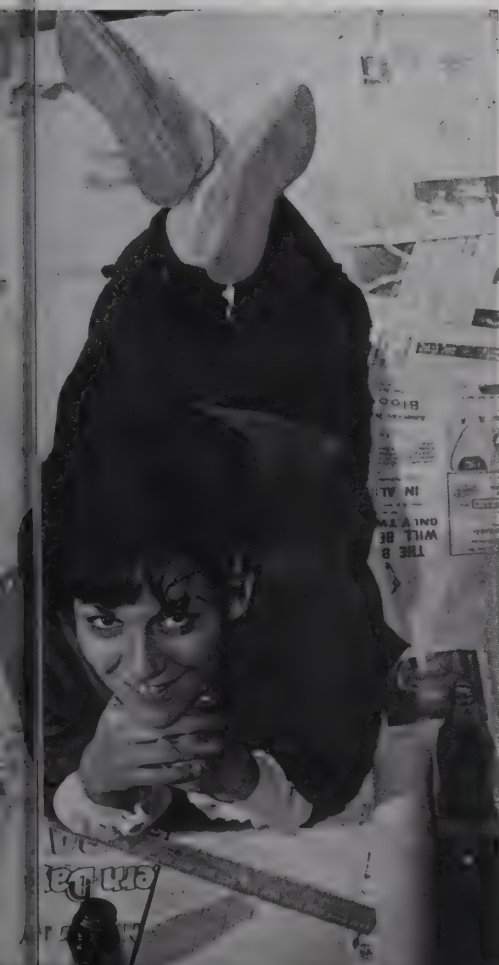

LINDA CRANE

Linda Crane, junior, who lives in Curry House of Read Center, is a music education major. From Indianapolis, she recently transferred to I.U. from William and Woods College in Missouri. Once coeds are nominated for the contest, they go through two series of eliminations, one in person and one by picture. The Student Body chooses a queen from the five finalists.

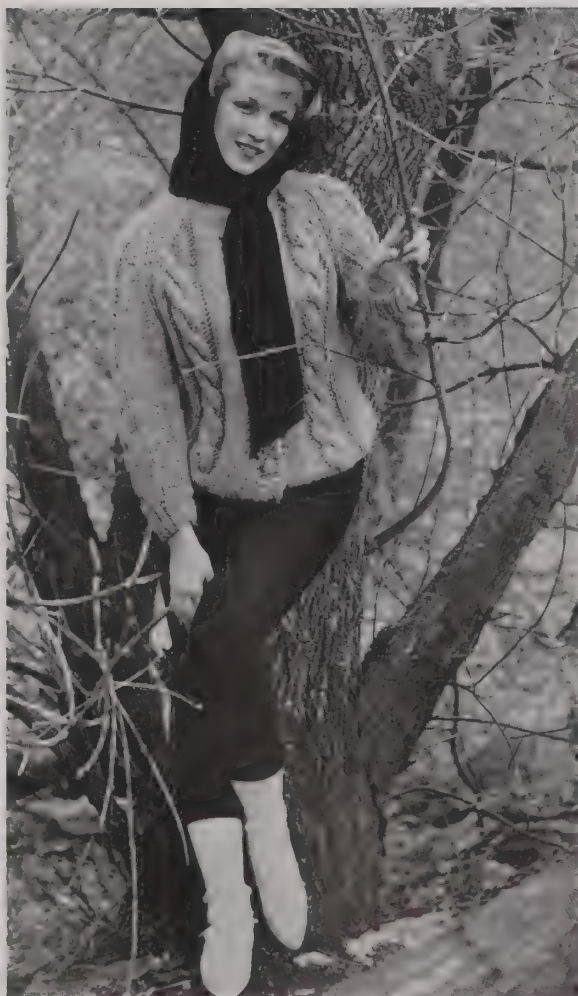

1962 Military Ball
Queen Barbi Einsteadig, sophomore, was selected by professional photographers and the Arbutus Big Three as one of the five finalists. Miss Einsteadig, from Terre Haute, is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi social sorority and majors in business - journalism. She works as a regular member of the advertising staff of The Indiana Daily Student.

BARBI EINSTANDIG

BEVERLEE KRATSCH

Beverlee Kratsch, junior, is from Chicago and majors in Spanish. She was nominated by her sorority, Kappa Delta. The Arbutus beauty contest is conducted annually to select the campus' "queen of queens," a coed chosen for beauty, personality, and photogenic qualities.

KATHY LONDON

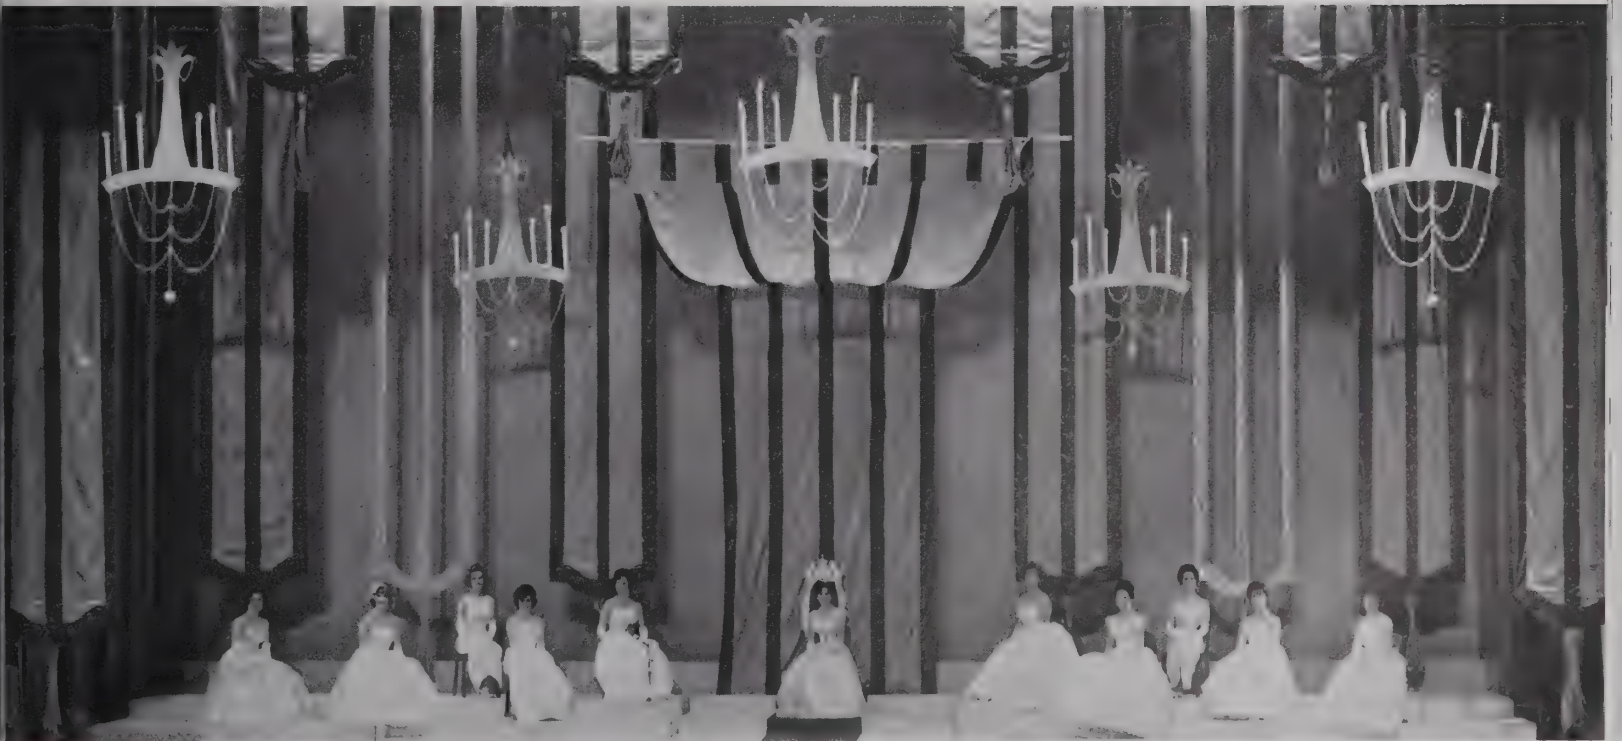

Kathy London, whose hometown is Columbus, represented Sycamore Hall in the contest. A junior, she majors in elementary education. Miss London and other members of the court attended the Christmas Eve on Campus dance and watched as Miss Moore was crowned. The coronation of the campus "queen of queens" has become as traditional at the Christmas dance as St. Nick.

MISS I.U. EARNS HER CROWN

Miss Indiana University, this year Betty Jean Carroll, is selected through one of the most elaborate preliminary divisions of the Miss America contest, the Miss I.U. Pageant sponsored by Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Miss Carroll won her title for poise, beauty, talent, and intelligence. A sophomore and member of Pi Beta Phi, she received her crown from her successor, Linda Mugg (above, left) and congratulations from Nancy Anne Fleming, 1961 Miss America.

A VOTE, A MOOD, APPLAUSE: ANOTHER COED JOINS THE CAMPUS MONARCHY

Homecoming, backed by the beauty of a colorful fall landscape and a sparkling crisp day, was further enhanced by the beauty of its special queen, Ann Bartholome. Crowned at the pep rally, Ann reigned over the Homecoming activities including the Homecoming game with Northwestern and the Sigma Delta Chi Blanket Hop. She represented a symbol to I.U.'s visiting alumni of the grace of I.U.'s present student generation.

Spring draws forth the beauty of nature which is honored by all men. At I.U. in spring, a queen is selected to reign over the traditional Cream and Crimson intra-squad football game and to be honored by I.U. students. When campus-wide campaigning secured her the most votes, Carol Moore, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority received the 1962 honor.

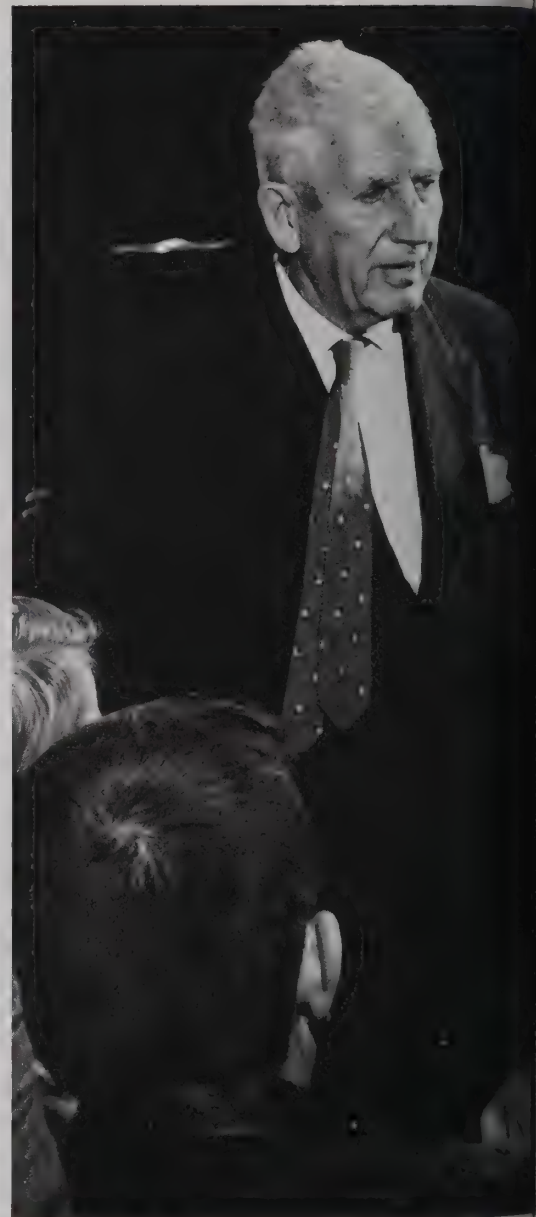

Winter waltzes accompanied Ron Hoover of Alpha Tau Omega and Judy Barkowski, king and queen of the Freshmen Tyronian Dance, in the dance reserved for the royalty. The annual winter semi-formal dance with its theme of "Oriental Blues" was planned, organized, and presented entirely by freshmen for upperclassmen and frosh alike.

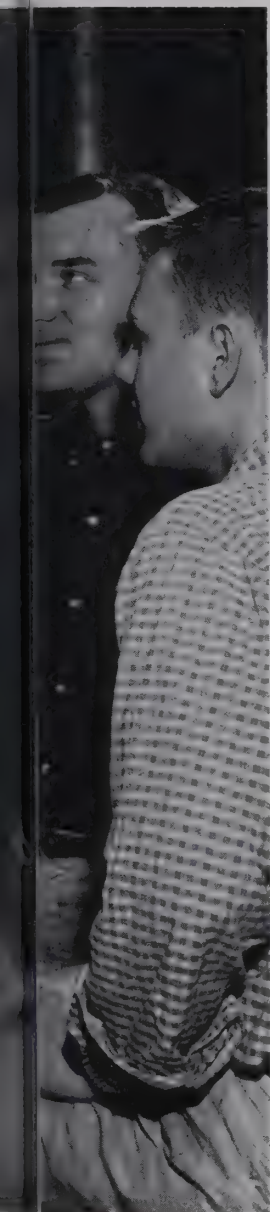

Pride of the Reserve Officer Training Corps was Karen Strom, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, when she was crowned queen of the Military Ball. The former queen, Barbara Einsteadig, an Alpha Epsilon Phi, had the honor of adjusting the new queen's tiara. An overflow crowd observed the coronation and braved the cold spring weather to hear the musical interpretation of the internationally-known Les Elgart and his bandsmen.

Simulated senatorial sessions provide campus and community with platform for interchange of knowledge and opinion on important issues. Proposed bills are presented for debate to the Great Issues Forum, composed of one hundred student senators. Senator Paul Douglas, Illinois (above, right), addressed the forum this year in his campaign to save the Indiana Dunes area.

STUDENTS DECIDE GREAT ISSUES

A SENATOR COMES TO CAMPUS

Three thousand students greeted United States Senator Barry Goldwater (D-Ariz.) when he spoke (right) at a meeting on campus March 15 sponsored by the Young Americans for Freedom and the Young Republicans. Pert coeds, the Barryettes, met and escorted the Senator to the campus.

TOWN X WINS BOWL

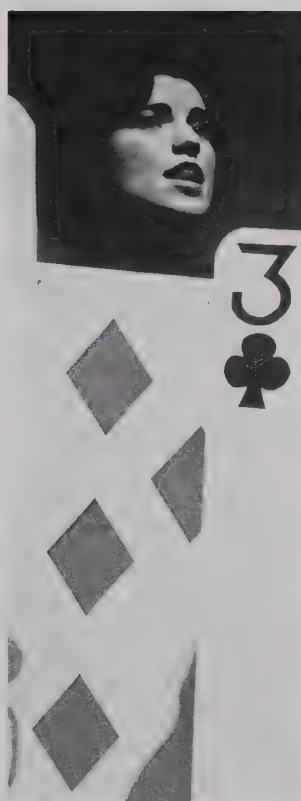

Town X emerged the victor in the campus Quiz Bowl after a month-long session of rounds in which the other fifty-six participating teams were eliminated. Members of the winning team (above, left to right) were Ralph Seifert, David Isaacson, Richard Wampler, and Joseph Carey, all students who live out in town. Prizes for the annual battle of wits were silver bowls and medals. Sherry Mervis, general chairman, co-ordinated the program which is sponsored by the Union.

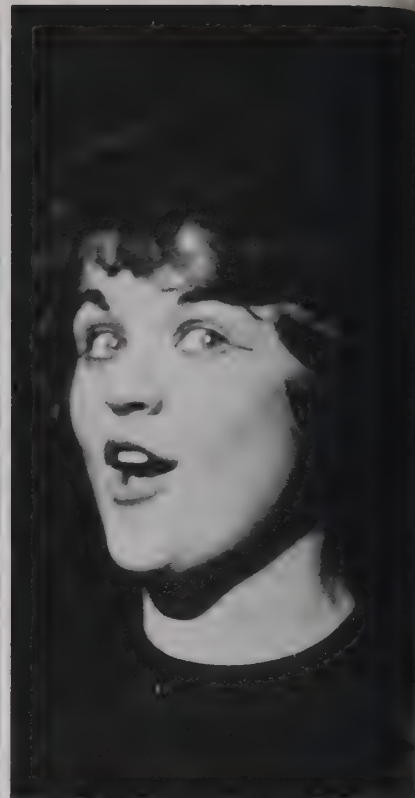

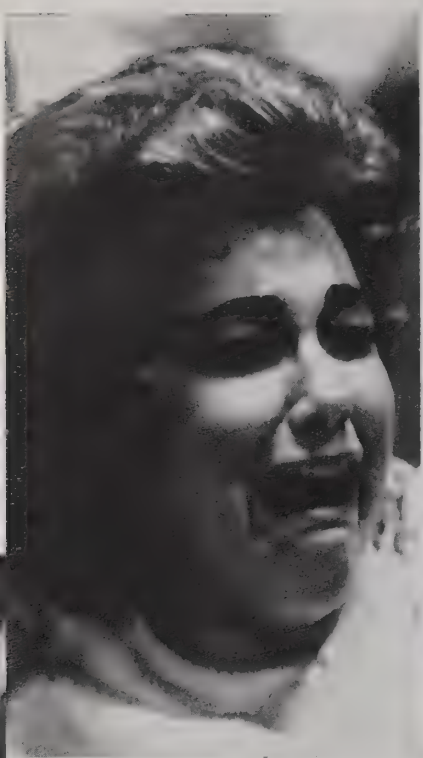

HOOSIERS LIKE TO 'SINGALOT'

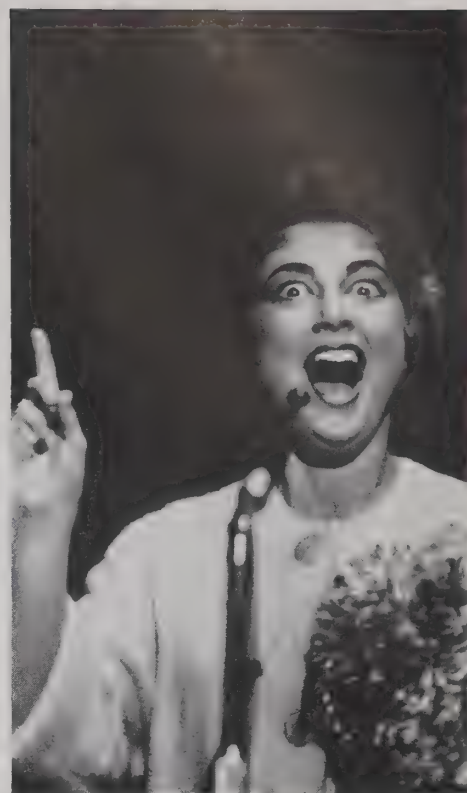

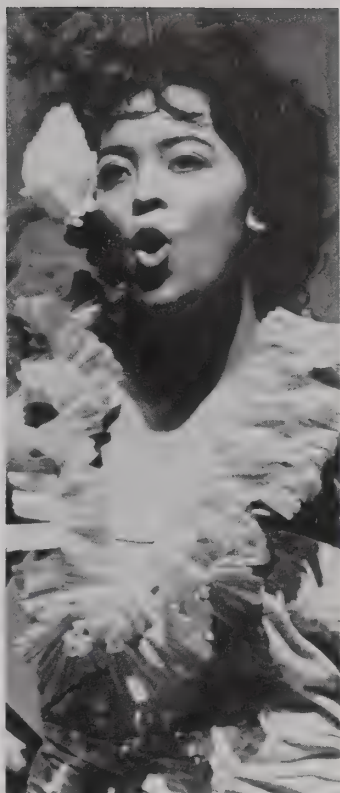

Since 1932, students at Indiana University have planned, rehearsed, and designed choreography and costumes in order to "Singalot" in the I.U. Sing tradition. Sponsored by YWCA and YMCA, this year's extravaganza was the thirtieth Sing since that first one presented in 1932 on the steps of the Student Building. Musical ability, direction, theme, costumes, and a determination that forces a student to find time for daily rehearsals are all a part of the Sing. When the first traveling trophy for best overall performance was presented in 1957, the singing Sigma Kappas won it and kept it through 1959 when they retired it. Out of the musical limelight for three years, the sorority again earned the trophy in the 1963 "Singalot."

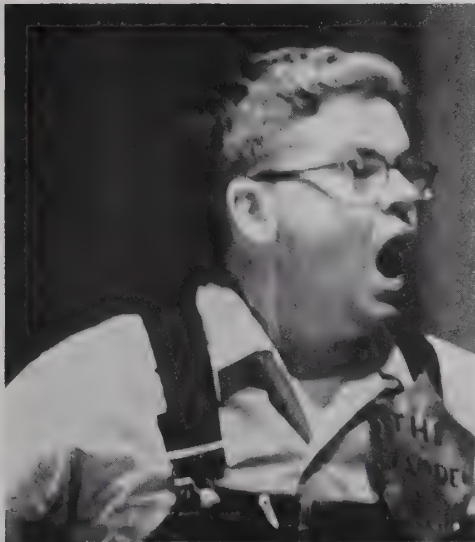

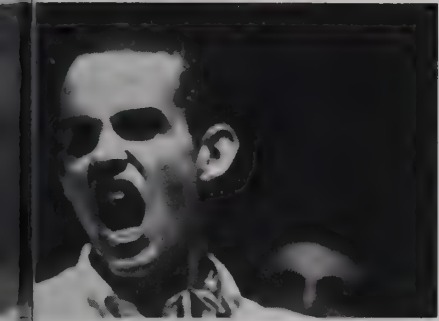

1963 winners were: Overall, Sigma Kappa; Men's Choral, Men's Residence Center, first, Beta Theta Pi, second; Women's Choral, Zeta Tau Alpha, first, Delta Gamma, second; Mixed Choral, Teter Center, first, Delta Sigma Theta and Kappa Alpha Psi, second; Production, Alpha Chi Omega, first, Wells Quadrangle, second; Small Group, Kappa Alpha Theta and Kappa Delta Rho, first, Phi Sigma Kappa, second.

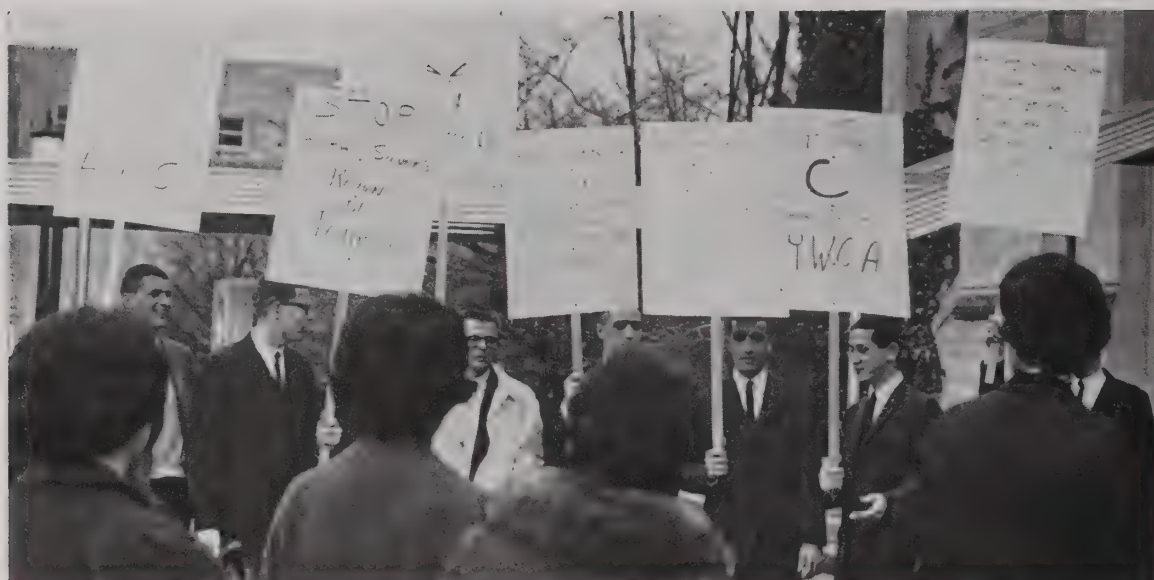

LUNA IS HEARD

Four hundred delegates from thirty-four universities represented 110 nations in I.U.'s Little United Nations Assembly. Dr. Robert Pitchell, one of the few non-students participating (opposite, lower left), conducted General Assembly sessions. LUNA delegates read while they pondered, and reference materials and "Mad" aided in deciding the fate of the mock world.

Dr. Doris Seward (right), Dean of Women at the University of Kentucky, said "Whuff?" and women attending the annual Association of Women Students Mass Meeting considered their futures. "Whuff" or "what if" was a problem delightfully studied before the coeds voted for new officers in AWS, YWCA and Women's Recreation Association, hissed male pickets and cheered new members of honorary organizations. When Mortar Board went tapping, the audience joined in the excitement as twenty-five juniors received their caps.

COEDS (AND FRIENDS) ATTEND MASS MEETING

A BUSY CAMPUS BOWS IN REVERENCE

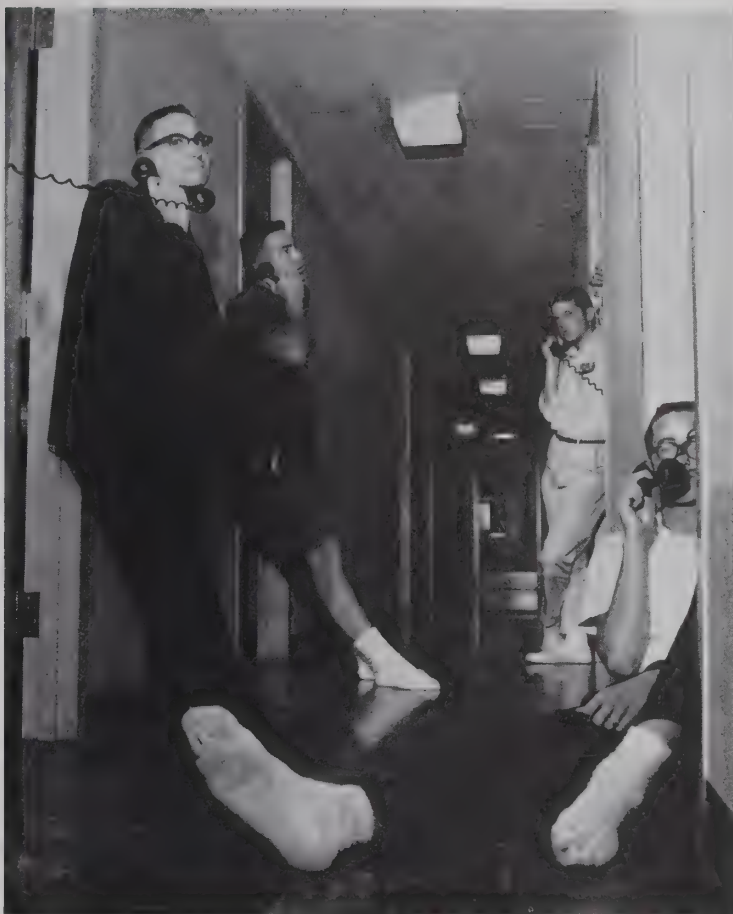

Religion on campus: respect for individuality is reflected in wide variety of church organizations. Collective worship at services on campus or in town, and private chapel meditation fulfill widespread religious needs of heterogeneous campus. Open classes, guest speakers, and films add to educational opportunities offered by campus religious foundations. To further friendships within common interest groups, foundations provide social functions: dances, parties, group discussions. Holiday observations and celebrations are convenient to busy student schedules. There are opportunities for student-inspired services and related programs within all denominations; and worship, education, friendship are geared to individual preference and tradition.

PACES OF DORM LIVING

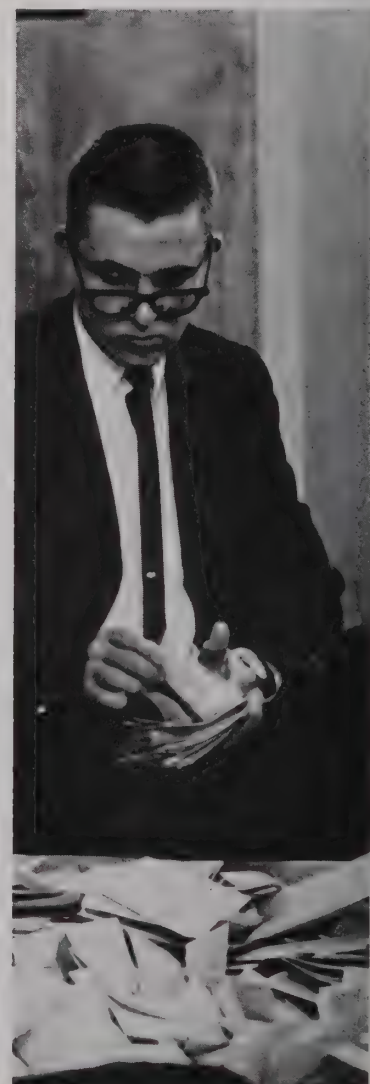

Dormitory pulsates as each personality within adds vital spark. Individuals clash or ally, and roommate becomes one to turn to or turn from. Room is animated as fervent voices accompanying uke penetrate screen of smoke; typewriter clicks, student and books are sprawled across floor. Pent-up energy finds release in flying pillows, soaring voices. All is quiet; a lone piece of pizza and half-empty coke sit beside closed books and a resting student escaping studies. This is tempo of dormitory atmosphere.

ACP AND ACTION VIE FOR ALL-CAMPUS POPULARITY

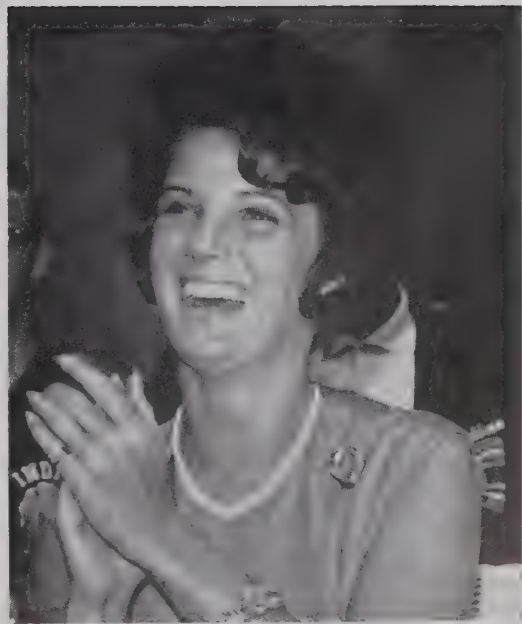

Competition waxed fierce and furious as the Freshman Class got its first taste of campus politics in October. Serious, thinking students weighed the issues and made their choices (below) at the polls. Grass-roots campaigning paid off for Dan Smith (below, left) and Dave Frick, elected class president and vice-president on the victorious ACTION party ticket. The election was the party's debut.

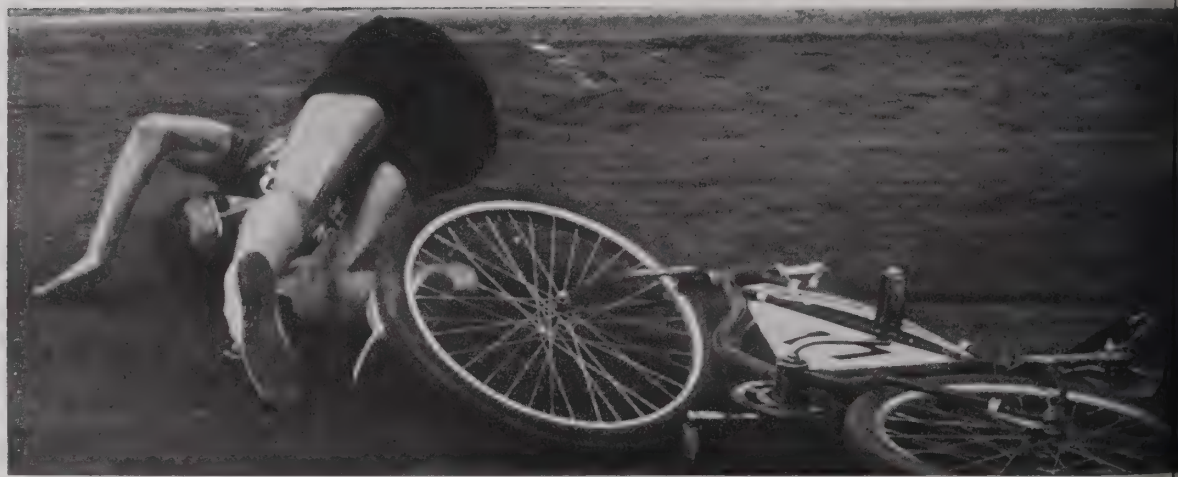

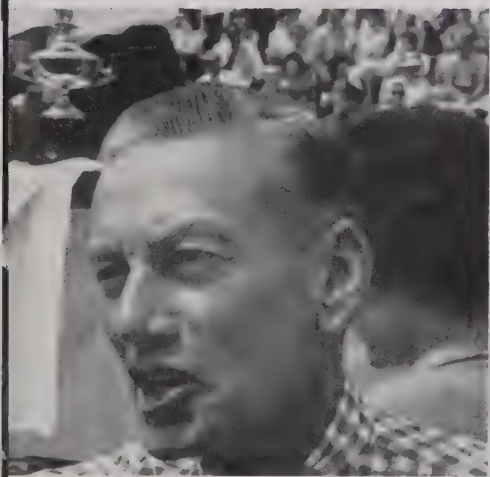

MINI SPOKES WHIRL TO FUN AND VICTORY

"World's greatest college weekend" encompassed students, faculty, and celebrities in madcap merriment. Record breaking crowd watched Little 500 cyclist teams speed round track at Memorial Stadium. An excited Lynda Lee Mead (far right), Miss America of 1960, reigned as Little 500 "Sweetheart." Victory intoxicated Oak Hall coeds (middle left), winners of eighth annual Mini Tricycle Race. The elaborate costuming (right) displayed Mini Team themes in pre-race parade, and Disneyland characters (bottom left) mingled with the crowds, fascinating children and adults alike with their antics. Proceeds from the various weekend activities provided funds for 131 scholarships given to students deserving of financial aid. The twelfth annual Little 500 was sponsored by Indiana University Foundation.

LITTLE 500 DIZZIES CROWD

To the victor go the rewards of successful Little 500 Weekend. An impromptu shower, a deliberate kiss reimburse members of Phi Kappa Psi's winning team. Little 500 profits are converted to scholarships which bring smiles from student recipients. Giving out the checks is favorite Little 500 duty for Foundation director Bill Armstrong.

Summer, study in sunshine while campus relaxes. Unhurried atmosphere, warmth, natural beauty, create a new lease on learning. Interest, energy, grow with spring freshness. Professors in shirtsleeves. Lengthened, mellowed hours of daylight provide incentive for inspired attack on studies. Brown County Playhouse — scenic trip, worthwhile, entertaining plays. Mass assembly for annual fireworks which add color, excitement to Fourth of July celebration on campus. Signs of strain and stress disappear, melted with winter snow.

SUMMERTIME'S EASE MELTS WINTER WOES

CURTAIN RISES IN BROWN COUNTY

Quaint Brown County Theatre (left) in picturesque town of Nashville raised its curtain for the fourteenth summer. The theatre "barn" is a workshop for summer stock students. Performers (below) are intent upon last minute direction for presentation of "Angel Street." The crew worked under supervision of Richard Scammon, associate professor of Speech and Theatre.

RESPONSIBLE AND READY IS THE MAJESTIC SHOWMAN

Calliope's clamor signifies arrival of the Majestic (above right). Purchased in 1959 by the Department of Speech and Theatre, Indiana University's red and white showboat opened its third season June 8. Ohio River villagers overflowed Majestic's 323 seats, as 15 theatre aspirants presented "Rip Van Winkle" 36 times and variety programs 37 times in 26 towns adjacent to the Ohio River. Each student earned six credit hours under direction of Dr. Lee Norvelle and Prof. Richard Moody.

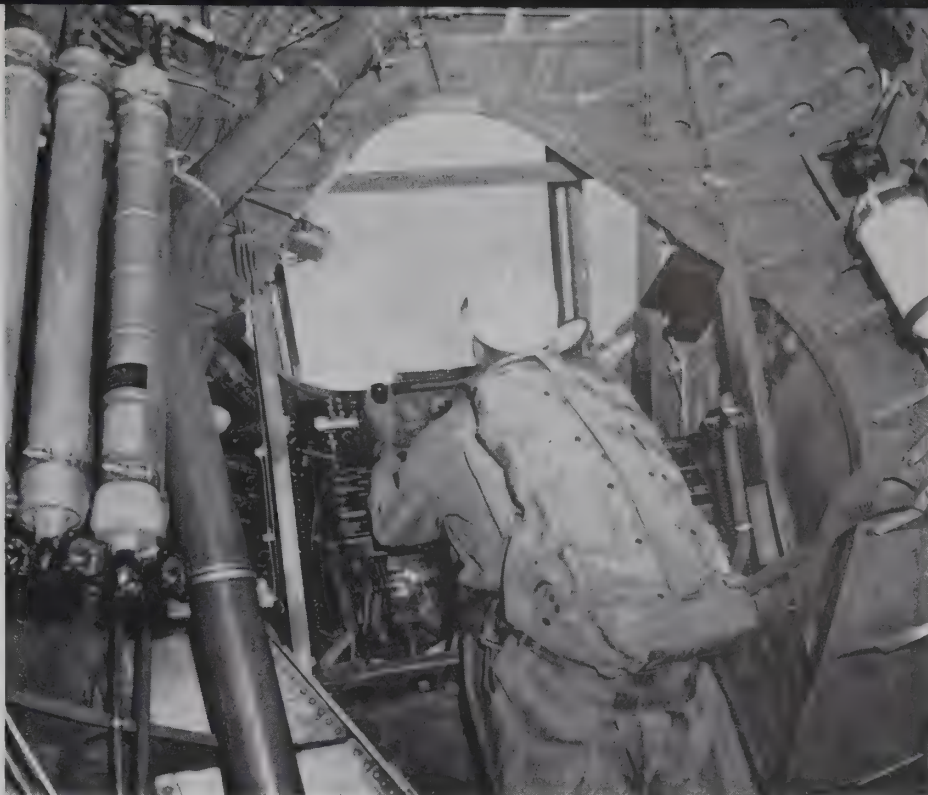

Tacit sense of responsibility is a pre-requisite of the Showboat actor. Cues must be memorized, costumes prepared to preserve resplendence. The deck must scintillate, concessions and tickets be sold, meals be prepared. And actors' personalities must establish intangible equilibrium. "Esprit de corps" inspires performance. Summer ends, and the Majestic returns to winter port in Jeffersonville. Curtain.

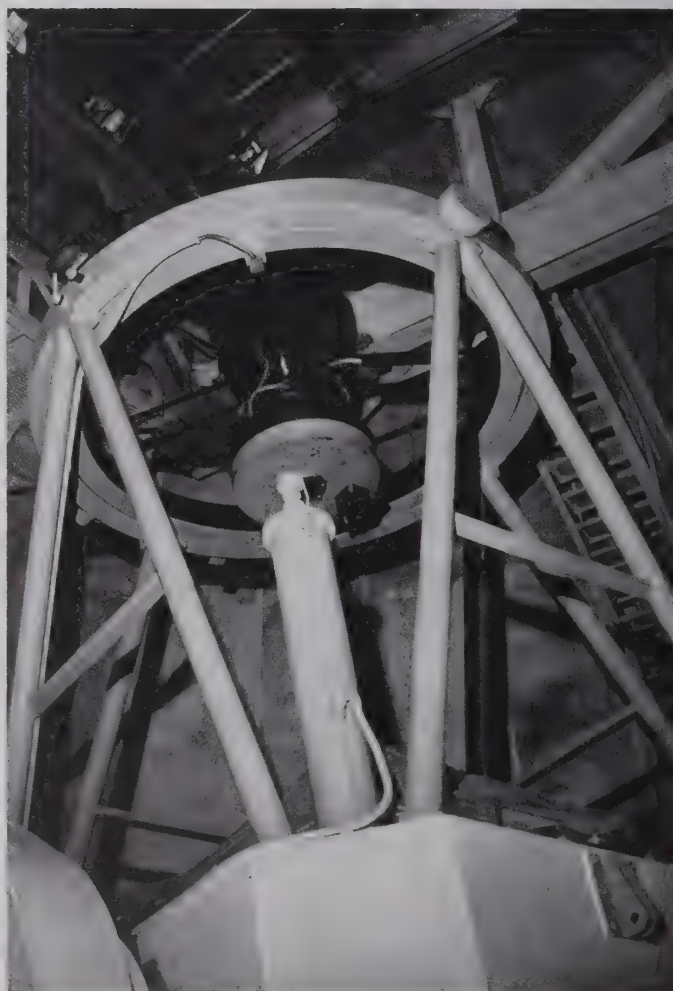

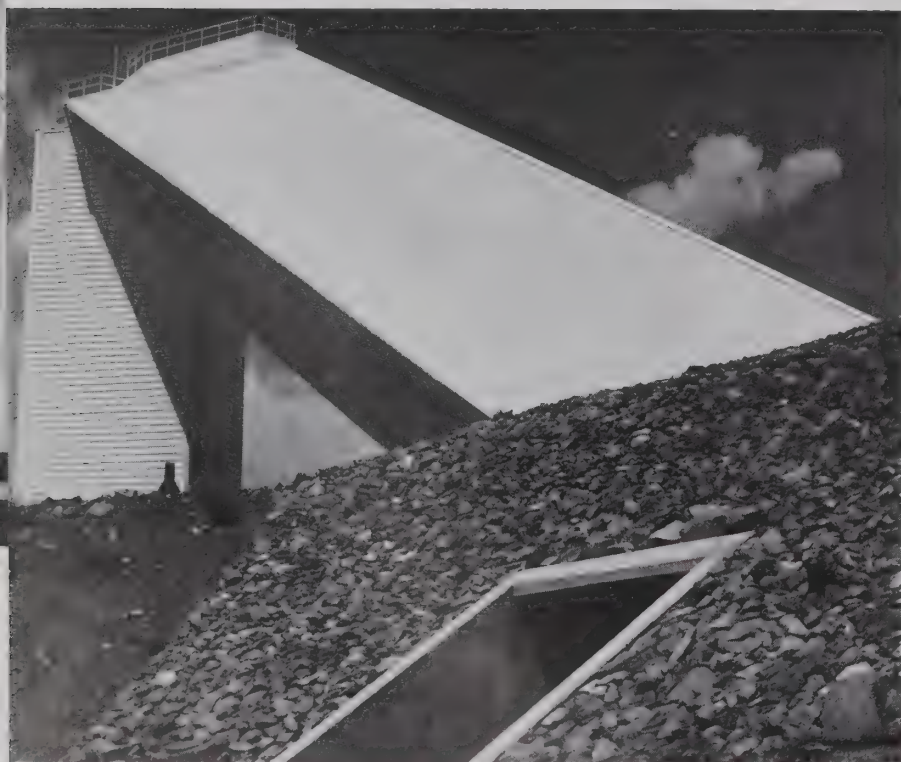

ROTC ACTIVATES CORPS

Chemical warfare and camouflage indoctrinated 200 ROTC college men into the military moil. Six weeks in the sultry summer heat at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation disciplined second-lieutenant candidates. Constant pressure spared no one. Manipulating arms, cleaning barracks, and drilling rigorously instituted rigid routine. Feigned bacteriological and psychological warfare stimulated men's minds, taught them new tactics. Animated offensive and defensive training prepared them to answer motto, "What will be the crisis today?"

Many astronomers benefit from the University's Kitt Peak National Observatory on the Papago Indian Reservation in Arizona. Kitt Peak has modern research equipment such as the Robert R. McMath Solar Telescope (below left), world's largest telescope for solar observations.

SUMMER SCIENTISTS SEEK SCENIC SITES FOR STUDY

A GUIDE, A GOAL: A GRADUATE

BOARD OF TRUSTEES GOVERNS EXPANDING I. U.

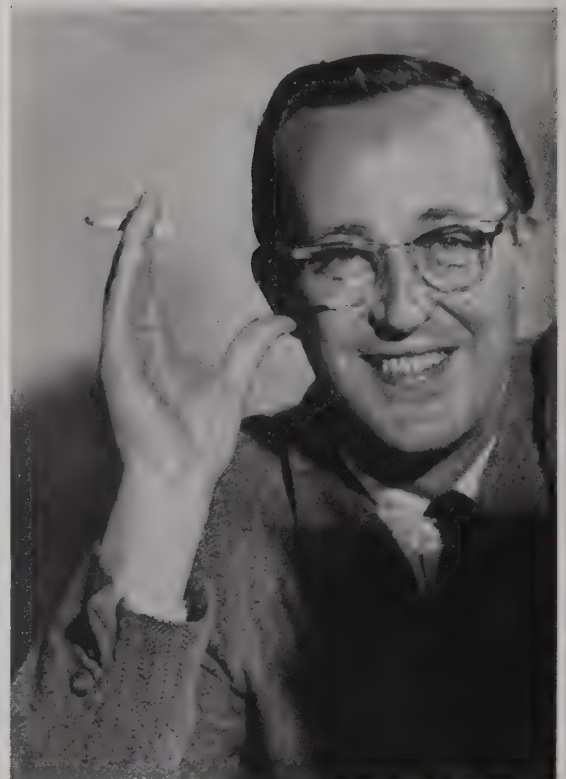

Governing Indiana University is the responsibility of the Board of Trustees. Three members are elected by the alumni and five appointed by the State Board of Education with approval of the Governor. The members serve for three years, and this year, Mrs. Richard G. Inskeep and Frank E. McKinney began new terms. Under the leadership of Willis Hickam, who was re-elected president in July, the Board has direct control over the many functions of the University. With new projects always under consideration, one of the major concerns of the Board is providing for the greatly increasing enrollment. Necessary provisions include more classroom buildings, housing, recreational, and library facilities, and securing more qualified faculty members.

Frank E. McKinney (below, left) is sworn in as member of the Board of Trustees by Willis O. Hickam, Board president. The Board, pictured at left, includes (left to right) Fenwick T. Reed, secretary; Mrs. Richard G. Inskeep, Donald C. Danielson, Ray C. Thomas, Willis Hickam, Frank E. McKinney, Stewart Riley, Mrs. William G. Maurer, and Robert F. McCrea.

PRESIDENT STAHR

Maintaining high academic standards, selecting top faculty members, and keeping business operations running smoothly are only a few of the duties of the President of Indiana University, Dr. Elvis J. Stahr jr. He must also attend committee meetings, act as host to foreign dignitaries, and make innumerable speeches. His office staff, which helps co-ordinate his duties, includes his personal secretary, Miss Bonnie Thickstun, and his administrative assistant, Dr. Joseph Ewers. Aside from general secretarial duties, Miss Thickstun has charge of the President's appointment schedule. Dr. Ewers, Dr. Stahr's personal assistant, carefully co-ordinates time schedules and acts as the President's official source of information.

Composed of 33 members, the Faculty Council is the representative body of the Indiana University faculty. Twenty delegates are elected by the faculty, while 13 are members by virtue of their office such as the President, the vice-presidents, the Dean of Faculties, and the deans of the individual schools. The Council considers proposals from the faculty, discusses administrative office matters, and reviews committee reports of complex problems of the University. Recommendations for honorary degrees are introduced by this body.

As Dean of the Graduate School, Vice-President, and Dean for Graduate Development, John W. Ashton's position entails various duties. He is in charge of administration of all graduate programs and the co-ordination of the various graduate divisions. Shirley Engel, Associate Dean for Graduate Development, aids Dean Ashton in this work. Graduate programs are at the heart of the research effort on the campus. Another vital and associated role of the school involves the training of college teachers. The course offerings to graduate students have been broadened by the addition of three new programs to meet changing student needs. A master of arts degree is being granted in uralic-altaic studies this year. In addition, a Ph. D. is being offered in mass communications, and a program in medical genetics has been added this year.

SAMUEL E. BRADEN

The University continues to initiate policies to improve undergraduate curricula and programs for degrees, reports Dean Samuel E. Braden of the Division of Undergraduate Development. For example, through a current project to broaden the area of co-ordination of teacher education and teacher certification, the responsibility for preparing teachers will be extended to include the entire University. Recently accelerated by a $650,000 Ford Foundation Grant, Indiana University's foreign language program is currently being studied to determine how it can provide better co-ordination of university language programs with those of the high schools. Improvements in high school teaching of foreign languages are being sought by expanding the influence of the University School as a model. Also, through this division, Indiana University is taking leadership in a co-operative program of the Big Ten Universities and the University of Chicago to expand foreign study opportunities for undergraduates. Several programs for the junior year of study abroad are being constructed so that students participating in these programs will better know the contributions such programs can make in their progress toward a degree.

Supervising all personnel and faculty members of Indiana University and the Regional Campuses is the function of the office of Dean of Faculties. Dean Ralph L. Collins, a member of the faculty since 1935, serves as the link between the academic divisions and the President and the Board of Trustees. Aside from counseling the faculty, the office's other primary responsibilities are planning detailed budgets with the deans of the various schools, deciding the pertinent matters that should be dealt with directly by the President, making faculty appointments and promotions, and adjusting faculty and personnel salaries.

Conferring with J. A. Franklin (seated), Vice-President and Treasurer, are (left to right) T. E. Randall, E. J. Shea, D. H. Clark, J. W. Hicks, and Robert E. Burton.

Foresight is the keynote of the office of Mr. J. A. Franklin, Vice-President and Treasurer. Planning for the next decade with emphasis on construction, research administration, and sound financial support demands careful consideration. D. H. Clark, business manager; J. W. Hicks, controller; T. E. Randall, assistant treasurer, and E. J. Shea, administrator of the I.U. Medical Center, supervise the business administration of I.U.'s wide range of departments within the structure of Mr. Franklin's office.

Six instructors were honored at 1962 Founders' Day ceremonies for distinguished teaching. Professors receiving the cash and certificate awards were (seated, left to right) Prof. Henry H. H. Remak, German, I.U. Foundation Award, Prof. Sylvia E. Bowman, English, of the Fort Wayne Extension Center, Frederic Bachman Lieber Memorial Award, and Prof. Alan M. Hollingsworth, English, Ulysses G. Weatherly Award. Teaching assistants who received I.U. Foundation Awards were (standing, left to right) John Nagosky, music, William R. Powell, education, and Dean Richenbach, economics. Chancellor Herman B Wells (standing, second from right), Foundation president, presented the awards.

INSTRUCTORS EARN AWARDS

Prof. David R. Derge (above), government, earned his place in Sigma Delta Chi journalism society's "hall of fame" when he received the Brown Derby at the Gridiron Banquet this spring. He won the derby after Sigma Delta Chi selected him as "most popular professor."

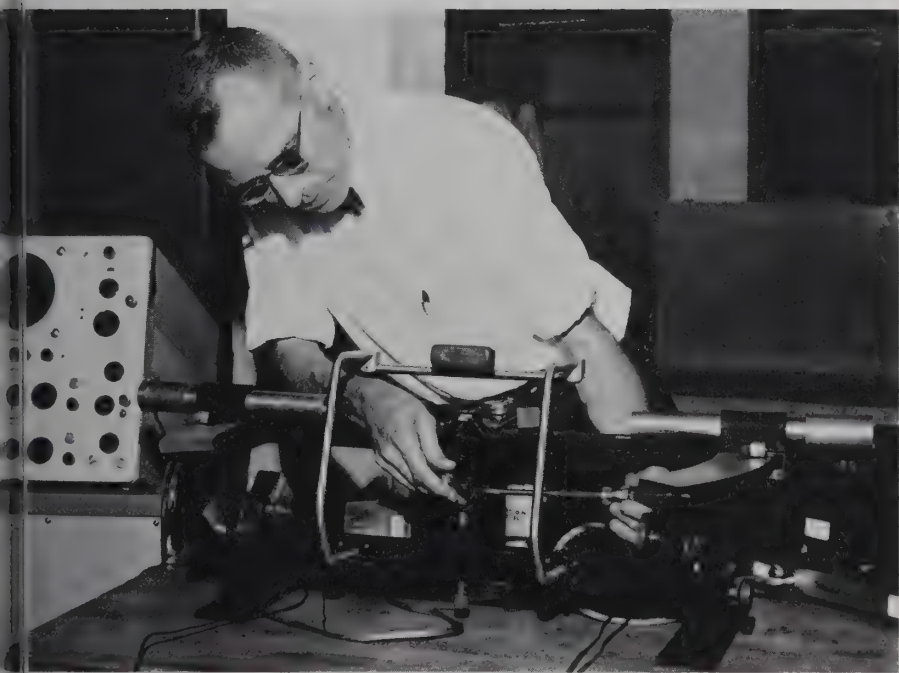

Professors in the headlines this year included Prof. John P. Lewis (above), government, who was named to President Kennedy's council of Economic Advisers; Prof. Jack Watson (above, right), music, who was named Dean of the Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati; Prof. Chase C. Mooney and Prof. Oscar O. Winther (opposite, above right), history, who edited the Mississippi Valley Historical Review; Prof. Robert J. Pitchell (right), government, who was named to the Washington staff of U.S. Senator Birch Bayh, and Prof. Merrill Allen (opposite, right), optometry, who was cited for his research in automobile driver's vision at night.

FOUNDATION FOR SERVICE

The I.U. Foundation, a non-profit corporation, receives and administers grants, contracts, patents, gifts, and bequests for the benefit of the University. Chartered in 1936 with the aim of providing a channel for alumni gifts to I.U., the organization, whose president is Dr. Herman B Wells, still has this as a primary objective. Increased sponsorship of research programs of I.U. faculty has made I.U. one of the country's leading research and international activities centers.

For the first time in its history, Indiana University has an administrative office of Chancellor. Dr. Herman B Wells assumed the post following his resignation as President of the University. He will serve on a number of national and state committees and boards. However, his principal work, according to Dr. Wells, will be with the I.U. Foundation. In that connection, Chancellor Wells will chair the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's newly formed "Industrial Application of Aerospace Research" program at I.U.

The Aerospace Research Applications Center (ARAC) was founded this year with the aid of a $150,000 National Aeronautics and Space Administration grant to the Indiana University Foundation. Arthur M. Weimer and Ralph E. Cleland are co-directors of the center. Associate directors are William L. Haeberle, Howard L. Timms, and Paul Klinge. The center's objective is to discover appropriate applications of aerospace research that can be used in industry. The main areas ARAC is concerned with are new materials, new processing and management techniques, and new products for commercial use. The program involves matching the needs of industry with research and development findings of NASA, which are being collected in Washington, D.C.

CENTER AIDS FACULTY STUDY

The International Development Research Center, according to research associate Jack Baranson, is being supported by the University's 1961 Ford Foundation grant. The center is expected to further faculty study of economic, political, and social developments in recently developing nations. The program will promote the work of faculty members already engaged in development-related research and create opportunities for research by other interested faculty members. It will provide publications, seminars, and special conferences to supplement regular instructional programs. Specialists are from the faculties on the Bloomington campus and all of the center campuses. Research is now carried out on the role of technology in the development process and educational and manpower planning. An advisory committee aids John P. Lewis, director.

Under the direction of Mr. Claude Rich, secretary, the Indiana University Alumni Office acts as the liaison between I.U. alumni and Indiana University. The Varsity Club, I-Men's Association, alumnae clubs, and foreign alumni are only a few organizations that fall within the responsibilities of this office. Commencement, Founder's Day, and Distinguished Alumni Service Awards are also under its direction. In addition, the Alumni Magazine, edited by John F. Schrodtt, Jr., is published nine times a year.

LIAISON FOR ALUMNI

PROVIDING NEWS

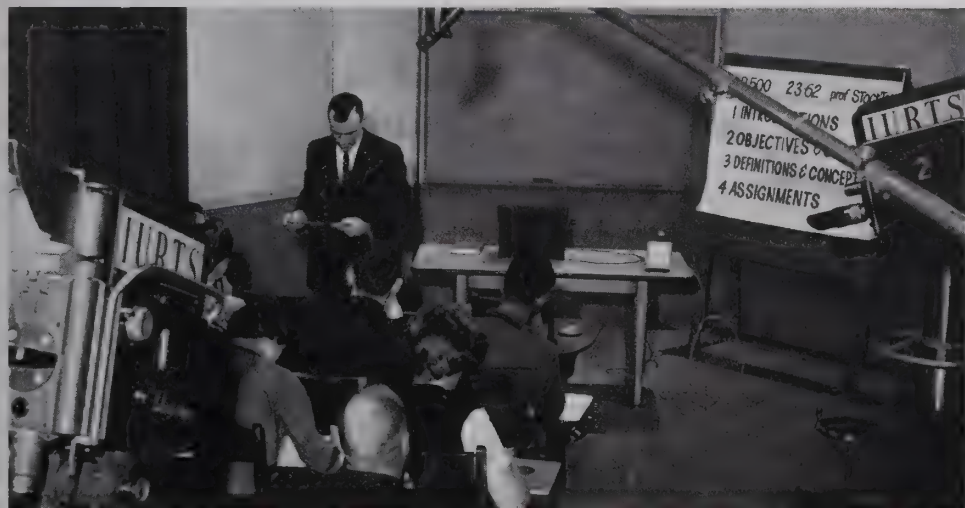

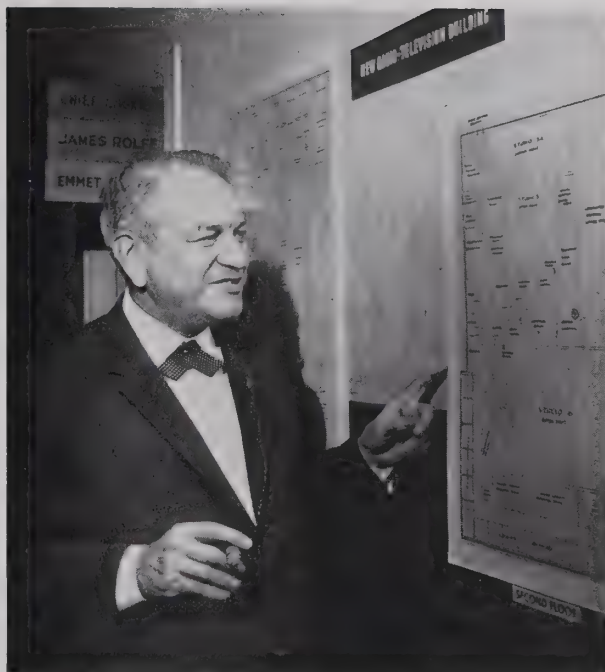

Obtaining wider understanding and support through interpreting University functions, policies, and events is the primary purpose of the University Relations Office and the I.U. News Bureau. According to James R. Jordan, assistant to the President for University relations, the areas of service include preparation of news for the press and writing for specialized publications for students, parents, and alumni. The Bureau, whose editor is Earl Hoff (above, right), also handles articles concerning the University that appear in other publications throughout the country. Indiana University has long been a leader in interpreting higher education, and future plans indicate the continuing improvement of communications among Indiana University, the press, and the people of the State of Indiana.

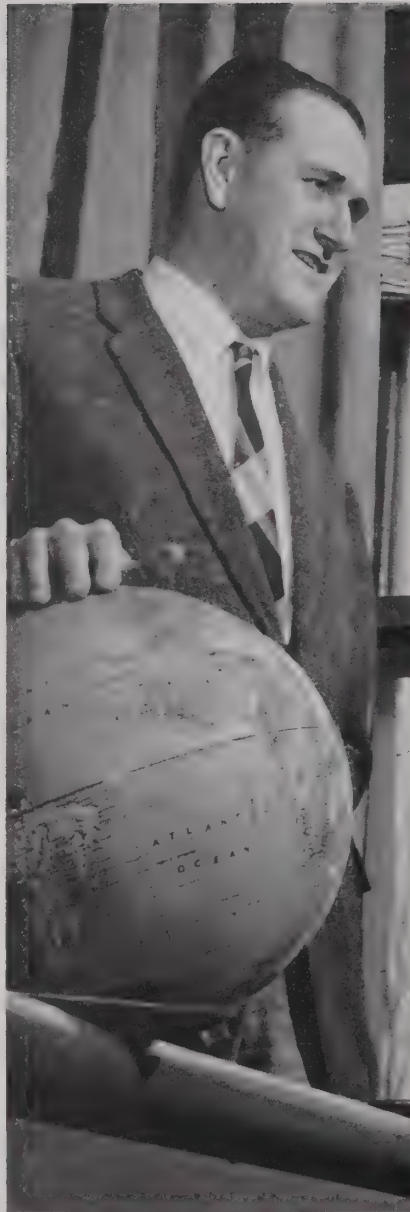

RADIO AND TV EXPAND HERE

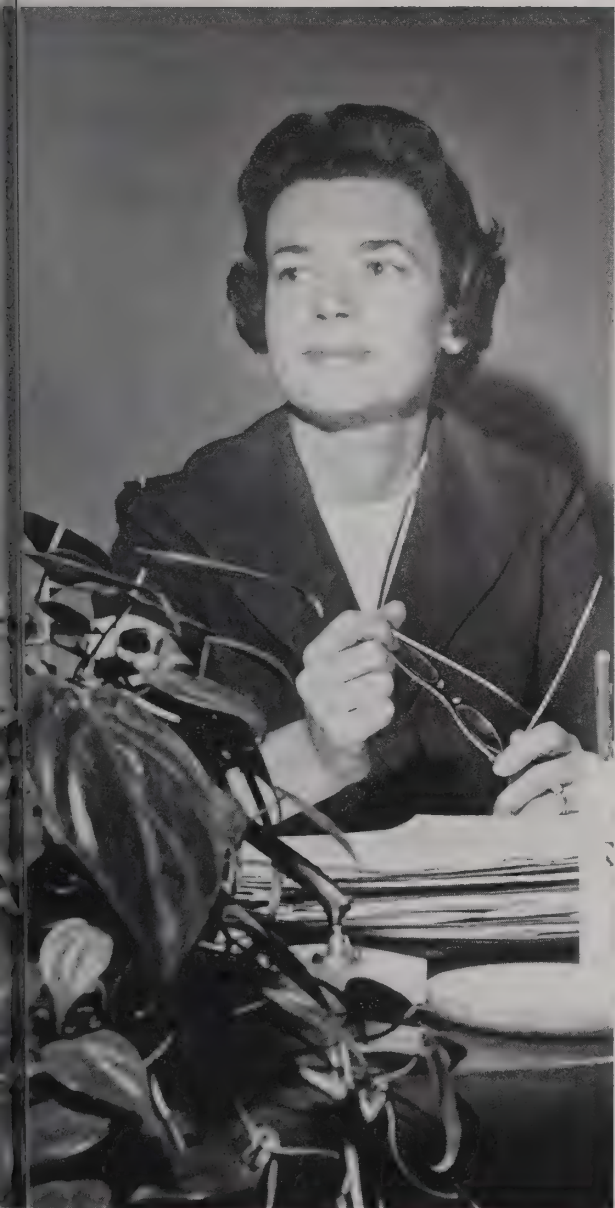

Video tape recordings and closed circuit operations are the Department of Radio and Television's newest projects and are slated for extension upon completion of the department's new building. The new building will also enable the most complete and educational broadcasts in the world. Working with the video tapes has introduced many complex difficulties, but this type of tape provides better television facilities to the public. Via closed-circuit television, classroom lectures broadcasted directly from the Bloomington campus can be picked up by the Indianapolis Center and by Purdue University. In addition to broadcasting daily over WTTV and WFIU, during the football and basketball seasons, the Radio and Television Department provides a sports network, feeding stations all over the state. The department is directed by Elmer Sulzer (right).

Student life is a concern of both the students and the Division of Student Personnel, directed by Robert H. Shaffer, Dean of Students. Dean Shaffer (above right), aided by his assistants, Associate Dean Leo R. Dowling and Assistant Dean Virginia Rogers, had responsibilities which pertained to all areas of student services. Dean Dowling (right) managed International services, which include foreign student life and American students wishing to study, work, or travel abroad. Dean Rogers (far right) handled Panhellenic affairs and the sorority office. Student activities, which include fraternity, student organizations, and student government, were regulated by Dean Thomas C. Schreck (below right).

STUDENTS BENEFIT FROM SERVICES

TESTS FOR JUNIOR DIVISION

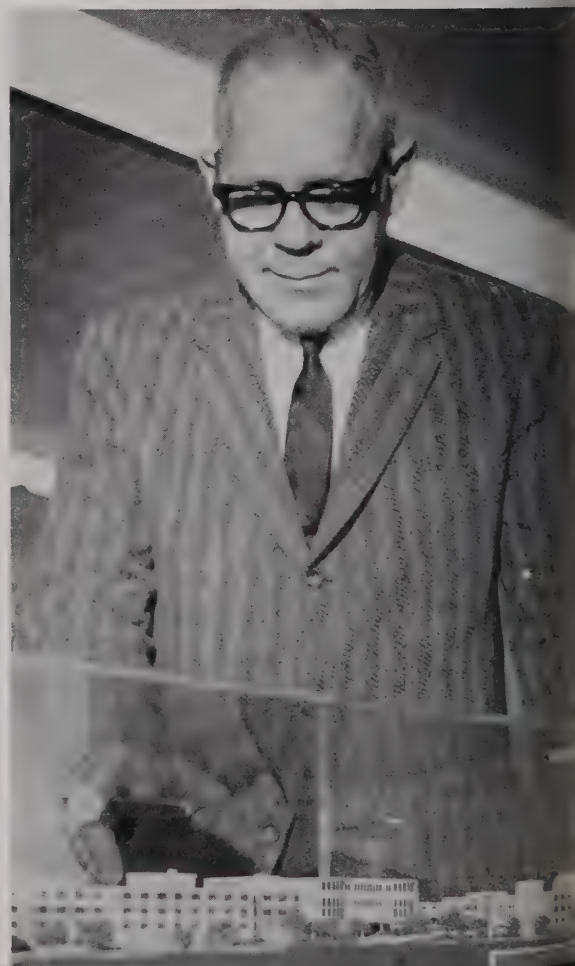

For the second year, reports Dean Pressly S. Sikes, forty honors advisers supplemented one hundred twenty-five regular advisers in freshman counseling. This year all entering students will be required to take either the American College Test or the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Board prior to admission. The tests, in addition to assisting in counseling and determining scholarship recipients, will help determine each student's qualifications before enrollment, and aid in advanced placement in special curricula.

RESIDENCE HALLS CENTRALIZED

George R. Olsen, Director of Halls of Residence, reports that the new Residence Halls Administration building at 801 North Jordan, which has been occupied since August, is affording a more centralized and efficient operation of the University's housing administration. Also housed in the new three-story limestone building are the Bursar's Office, the Off-Campus Housing Office, and the University Division of Safety. The housing administration hopes to be able to house more students in several new buildings next September. John W. Foster Quadrangle will be completely finished at that time for undergraduate men and women. It is expected that Fee Lane West I will be partially opened to undergraduate women. Three additional buildings and a browsing library are scheduled to be completed in the Graduate Residence Center. While this new construction continues, Memorial Hall in Agnes E. Wells Quadrangle will undergo a complete interior face-lifting preparatory for use by undergraduate women.

HEALTH CENTER REVAMPED

Ground-breaking typifies spring, and major 1963 spring digging on campus was for the new Student Health Center. By early second semester, blueprints were completed, and bids were submitted. The new center, to be situated on the northeast corner of Tenth Street and Jordan Avenue, will expand and improve the facilities of the Student Health Service directed by Dr. John Miller. Beds will be doubled from 50 to 100; and X-ray, physiotherapy, and laboratory facilities for out-patients will also be increased. A staff expansion will accompany the facility increase.

The purpose of the Student Employment Office is to co-ordinate Indiana University student employment on campus and in Bloomington. Approximately 2,300 student jobs are available throughout the year, and during an average fiscal year, more than 8,000 student interviews are conducted. At the office, job-seekers take typing and shorthand tests to determine the type of work for which they are best suited. Student wives and husbands, as well as students, are assisted in finding work. George DeKalb (below) directs student employment.

STUDENTS ARE EMPLOYED

THEY PATROL THE CAMPUS

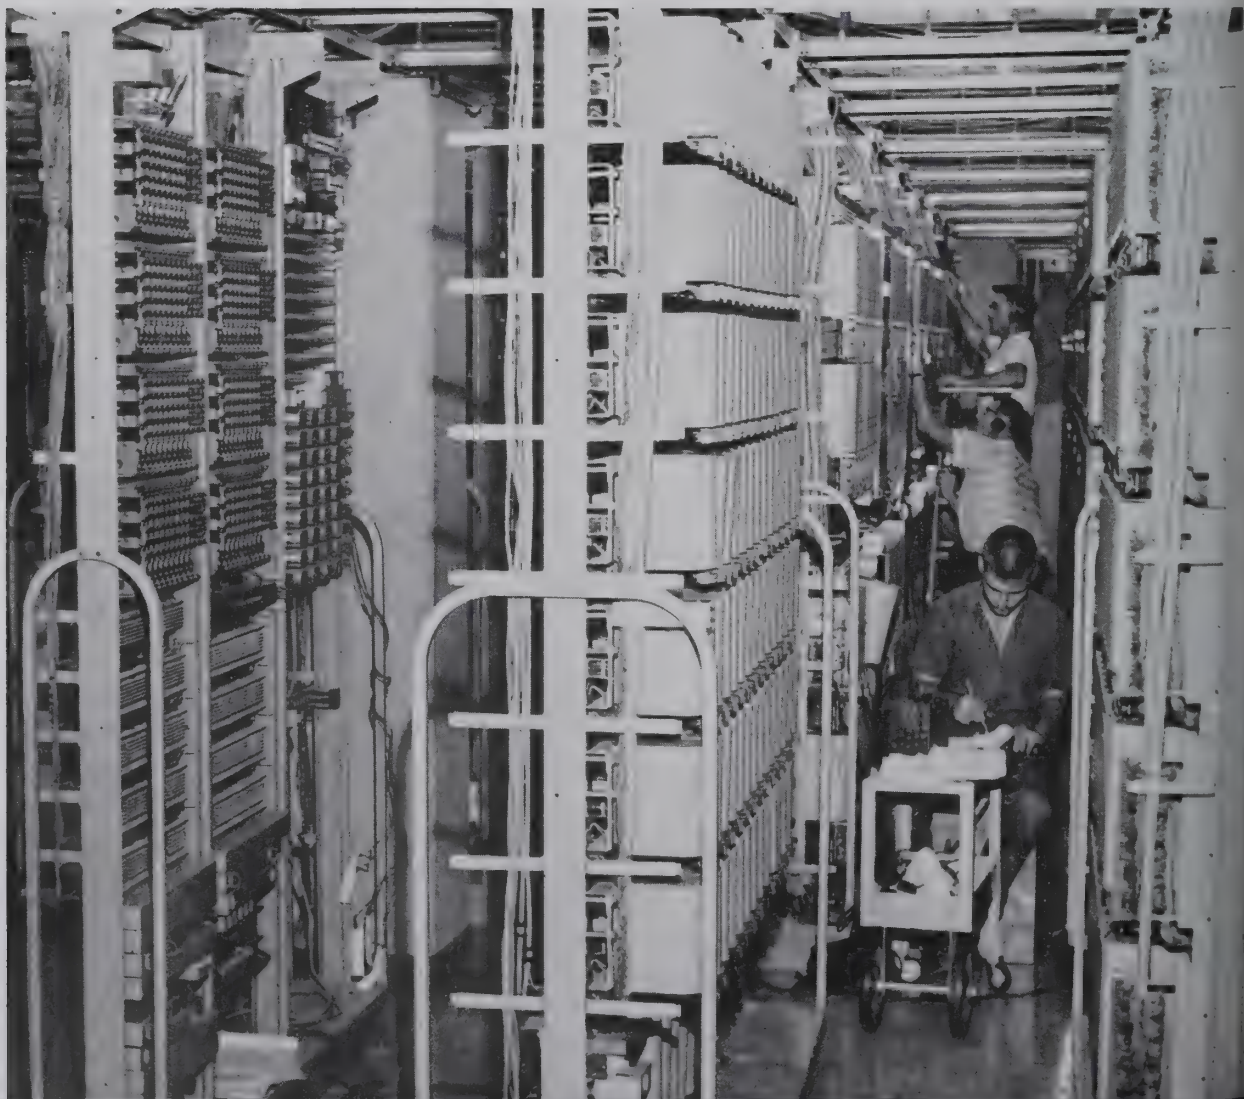

This radio dispatcher is relaying a message to one of the patrol cars of the Division of Safety. Twenty officers patrol the campus, in three shifts, twenty-four hours a day. The Safety Division isn't made up of only the familiar patrolmen. It also has a fire division, which inspects buildings for fire hazards, and a division of watchmen. There are several criminal investigators who look into crimes on campus. The Division of Safety moved this year to North Jordan. William G. Spannuth, Director of Safety, (right) is trying out the new lie detector.

DIRECT DIALING TELEPHONES

A new service on the campus this year is the direct dialing telephone system, which is under the supervision of Thomas C. Meglemre. This system, in addition to being less expensive than the old one, eliminates the confusion and time problems of the past. Ninety per cent of all on-campus calls are now made without the aid of campus operators.

Providing research information and data for more than thirty departments in Indiana University is the responsibility of the Research Computing Center. Since it was started in 1956, the center has tripled in size. It is now located in the new Health, Physical Education and Recreation building. To compute data the center uses IBM 709 computers, which are twenty times faster than the older ones and able to run sixteen hours a day. Each person using the service submits his own problem to the center where it is transferred from punch cards to the magnetic tape. After being run through the computers, the data is returned to the person, who is charged according to his problem and its size.

FOUNDERS' DAY REMEMBERS PAST

AND ANNOUNCES FUTURE

On the one hundred forty-second anniversary of its founding, Indiana University received a new president. At the annual Founders' Day ceremony Willis O. Hickam, President of the Board of Trustees, announced the appointment of Dr. Elvis J. Stahr jr. to succeed Dr. Herman B Wells. Students with high scholastic achievement were honored by administrative officials during the ceremony and a wreath was later placed on the grave of Dr. Andrew Wylie, first President of the University.

Officials directing Indiana University's extension centers and campuses represent wide area that I.U. serves. Extension directors and officials are (left to right): Victor Bogle, Kokomo; Orville Johnson, Richmond; Smith Higgins, Dean of Extensions; J. Howard Hill, Vincennes; Ralph E. Broyles, Fort Wayne; Rufus Reiberg, Associate Dean of Extensions; John C. Buhner, Gary; Byron F. Laird, Southeastern; Harold E. Burns, Calumet; Jack J. Detzler, South Bend, and Virgil Hunt, Indianapolis.

DIRECTORS CONTROL I.U. EXTENSIONS

CALUMET

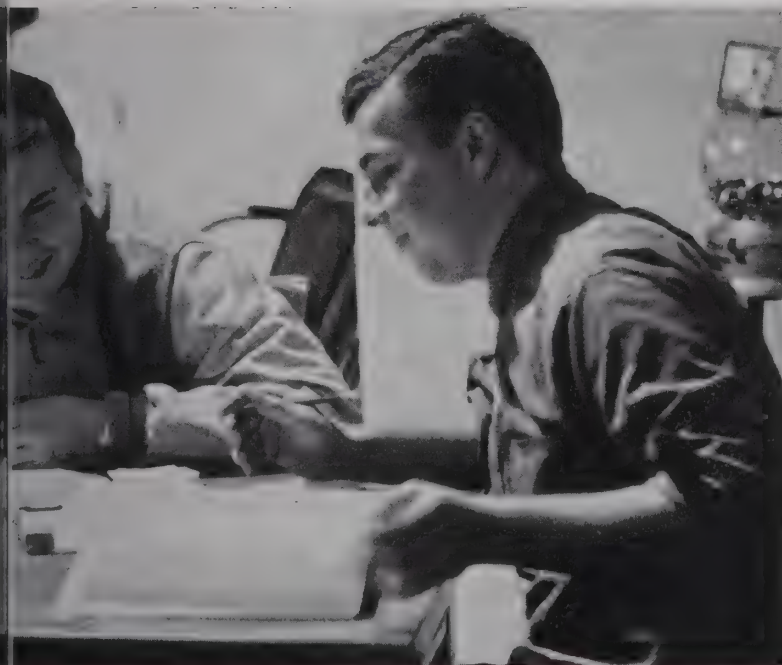

Calumet Center, located at East Chicago, was one of the seven Indiana University campuses that President Elvis J. Stahr jr. renamed regional campuses. This move is to better integrate the programs of the Bloomington campus with those of the regional campuses. Calumet Center was established in 1932, and the building presently being used was dedicated in 1939. Many facilities, such as a bookstore or lounges, that are found on the Bloomington campus, are also found at the regional campuses.

EARLHAM

Earlham College and Indiana University have had a joint co-operative extension arrangement since 1946. The Earlham extension, located at Richmond, is one of two such co-operative centers, the other being located at Vincennes University. In this arrangement, students are able to use Earlham's science laboratories and library. In addition to the courses offered to undergraduate students, the extension also has a well-developed adult education program.

FORT WAYNE

Indiana University's Fort Wayne campus was established in 1917, about a year after the first extension was established at Indianapolis. Within the next year, this campus will make history as the first joint I.U.-Purdue extension center. When this new building is completed, better facilities will be made available to students.

GARY

The new building of the Gary regional campus of Indiana University was dedicated in 1959. Gary's campus tries to provide an atmosphere as nearly like that of the Bloomington campus as possible. Musical programs, exhibits, and a student council program supplement the center's academic program.

The Indianapolis Downtown Center is Indiana University's largest and oldest regional campus, as it was set up in 1916. For about two years, this campus has been on a closed circuit television hook-up with the Bloomington campus. In addition, the center offers special classes to Medical Center students.

INDIANAPOLIS

Southeastern's campus, situated at Jeffersonville, dedicated its new building in 1958. Recently this campus added a full-time psychologist and an associate professor of English to its staff. Southeastern serves southern Indiana and northern Kentucky.

SOUTHEASTERN

This Spring, a new building was begun for the regional campus located at Kokomo. This building will replace Carriage House (shown above). Last semester the curriculum was expanded, and several of the classes met at the Bunker Hill Air Force Base.

KOKOMO

SOUTH BEND-MISHAWAKA

Just over a year ago, the new South Bend - Mishawaka Center building was dedicated. This building houses many facilities, such as student-faculty lounges, a large bookstore, science libraries, and a 900-seat auditorium, that are found on the campus at Bloomington. This center was one of those designated by Dr. Stahr as a regional campus, and it is the fastest-growing of the seven. The faculty at South Bend - Mishawaka includes fifty full-time members, and fifty-five part-time lecturers.

VINCENNES

Indiana University has had a co-operative extension arrangement with Vincennes University since 1950. This co-operative program is set up so that freshmen and sophomores attending this extension receive credits transferable to either university, but above the sophomore level, the credits transfer only to I.U.

Founded on the Bloomington campus in 1903, the I.U. Medical Center was moved to Indianapolis in 1909, where it was combined with a number of other colleges. The Center has grown to the extent that it now encompasses several different buildings and schools. Schools include the School of Medicine, School of Nursing, School of Dentistry, Division of Allied Health Services graduate program, and the Division of Social Service graduate program.

GRADUATION MARKS A NEW LIFE

University administration, faculty, distinguished guests and graduating seniors move in a long procession into the stadium. To the participating seniors, the graduation exercises mark an ending of one way of life in anticipation of another. Mixed emotions of sadness and happiness are mirrored on the graduates' faces. Four years of study and hard work, along with a great deal of fun, make the diploma mean so much to each and every graduate of Indiana University.

Ritual of signing diplomas and enduring the ceremony ends in varied exhibitions of feeling. President Stahr (far left) signs the uncountable number of diplomas for graduating seniors.

SCHOOL OF ALLIED HEALTH SCIENCES

Director of the Division of Allied Health Sciences, Aaron Andres, reports that this year, the division will award its greatest number of degrees. This division, comprised both of underclass students in Bloomington and upperclass students on the Medical Center campus, awards its degrees through the school of medicine in such fields as medical technology, physical and occupational therapy, medical record library science, public health, and dental hygiene. Indiana University leads the Big Ten schools in this innovative program. This year, the Medical Center students presented seven convocational demonstrations on the Bloomington campus, and opened them to all interested persons. Also, another new innovation is a new student council, representing each program of the division, which now determines social activities and convocations within the Division of Allied Health Sciences itself.

SCHOOL OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

According to Dean Frank T. Gucker, Professor of chemistry, the College of Arts and Sciences is working to improve the programs presently offered and, in addition, to develop important new fields of study. This year, the new Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures has been created, and work in African studies has been strengthened by the addition of three new faculty members forming a strong group of experts in this field. Aiding Dean Gucker in the administrative work of the College are two new associate deans, Joseph L. Sutton, Professor of government and Daniel W. Miller, Professor of physics. Together, these three men divide their time between their respective classrooms and their administrative duties for the College.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Patiently awaiting completion of its new building, the School of Business has, according to Dean Arthur M. Weimer, initiated several activities and programs during the year. More than ninety persons in the Indianapolis area, having met the same requirements as campus students, enrolled last fall in a closed circuit television course in the master of business administration program, bringing total enrollment to more than four hundred. Initiated last year, the program may soon be extended to several other cities. This spring, the Herman B Wells Leadership Seminar was inaugurated for seniors who show marked leadership abilities in their respective fields of study at the University.

SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

Indiana University's School of Dentistry, located in the Medical Center, has, according to Dean Maynard K. Hine, an all-time high enrollment this year. Faculty and graduate students are doing dental research to develop better methods of preventing and treating dental disease. Television and recently developed electronic instruments have been adapted to research. Many clinical field studies testing the effectiveness of research findings directly on patients are also underway.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

According to Dean Harold G. Shane, the Indiana University School of Education is one of the largest in the world. It has a comprehensive program at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and has attracted many distinguished faculty members in recent years. Among other functions, it provides service courses for the preparation of teachers enrolled in other Schools of the University. As a future plan for prospective teachers, a five-year program, in which a student may acquire his master's degree, is being contemplated. Such a program would be designed not only to encourage stronger academic backgrounds, but also to develop greater professional skill in future teachers.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH, PHYSICAL EDUCATION, AND RECREATION

According to Arthur S. Daniels, Dean, the Indiana University School of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation offers services in three major areas. Instruction in basic sports provides freshman students with recreational backgrounds. Expanded campus intramural sports and activity nights offer many extra-curricular activities for students. And an improved curriculum gives students in HPER better training for their future positions.

SCHOOL OF LAW

Complex legal problems faced by modern businessmen in worldwide transactions led to the creation, this year, of a comparative law program, Dean Leon H. Wallace, Law, has stated. Students entering the Junior Division in 1963 must have a Bachelor's degree for admission to the School of Law, and the three-year pre-law program will be discontinued. Future attorneys now gain trial experience by assuming roles in moot court sessions and proceedings.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Indiana University's Medical School, the fifth largest in the United States, took in the largest freshman class in the country this year, according to Dean J. D. Van Nuys. Among the courses which greeted the future doctors was a newly formed freshman orientation course in cellular metabolism. In addition to continuing its extensive work in heart research, the School began a research program in the metabolism of children born with brain damage and "autistic children" with acquired mental illness.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Under the direction of Dean Wilfred C. Bain, the I.U. School of Music presents to music students a wide variety of courses from the History and Literature of the Opera to the Stylistic Analysis and Arranging of Jazz. The theory and methods studied are then accentuated by practical application in such activities as the opera series and jazz ensembles. The School of Music was instituted in 1893, and has risen until today it ranks among the highest in state universities in enrollment, and it is outstanding in music education, opera, and organizations.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

According to Miss Emily Holmquist, Dean of the School of Nursing, the School has recently been awarded a grant from the United States Public Health Services. This grant will be used over a five-year period to sponsor a series of courses in nursing care of patients with cerebral disorders. To fill positions vacated by resignations and also to expand the staff, eight new instructors have been appointed to the School's faculty. The faculty members are presently examining the School's curriculum offerings in order to insure continued improvement. Ideas suggested for an expansion of the present curriculum and the initiation of research activities are now in the planning stages.

OPTOMETRY SCHOOL

Indiana University's Division of Optometry, the only Optometry School in the state of Indiana, was formed in 1952. Dr. Henry Hofstetter, who has been the Division's Director since its inauguration, states that the Division employs a five-year program. The optometry student spends two years in a pre-optometry program, and then enters the school. After four years of study, the student receives a bachelor of science degree, and after five years, receives a master of optometry degree. At the present time, contact lens research is being conducted for the Air Force, the National Science Foundation, and the American Optometrical Foundation in the two I.U. vision research laboratories.

An aerial photograph of a large sports complex. In the foreground, a large stadium with a distinctive arched, ribbed roof is visible. To the left of the stadium is a large, rectangular parking lot filled with cars. To the right of the stadium is another large parking lot, also filled with cars. Behind the stadium, there is a large, open field, possibly a soccer field or a track. In the background, a residential area with many houses is visible. The text "SPORTS ON THE UPSWING" is overlaid in the center of the image.

SPORTS ON THE UPSWING

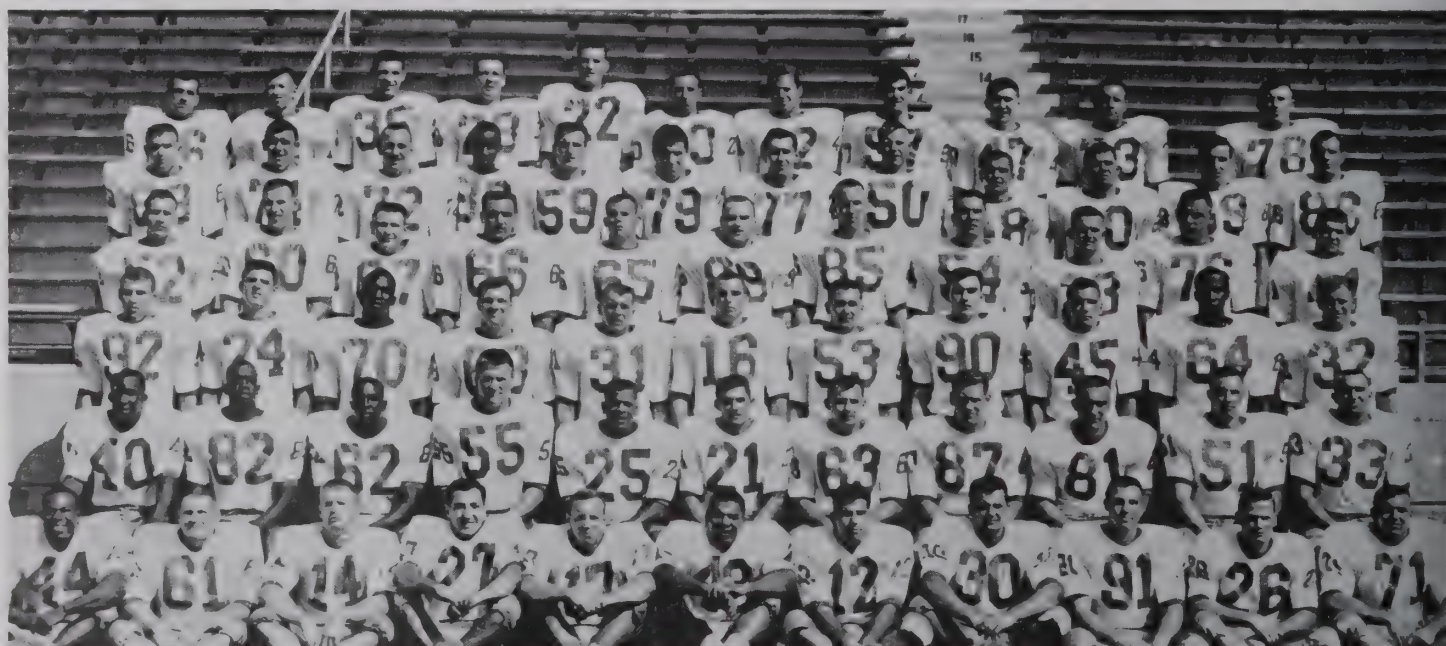

PURDUE THIRSTY; 'BUCKET' NOW AT I.U.

The Fighting Hoosiers, the best losing team in the country, surprised the experts with their spirited play throughout the 1962 football season. After impressive victories over non-conference foes in their first two games, this underdog squad faced the top-ranked teams in the Big Ten. Displaying grim determination and hustle, the gridmen rebounded from each heartbreaking defeat to meet the next monstrous opponent with renewed inspiration. A fumbled handoff against Iowa, a last-quarter touchdown by Northwestern, and a desperation field goal by Ohio State marked the thin line separating a moral victory from a scoreboard win. Team effort, both offensively and defensively, outweighed individual performances. But the most gratifying moment of the year occurred when the scoreboard at Ross-Ade Stadium in Lafayette read: Purdue-7, Indiana-12, time remaining, 0:00.

Marvelous Marv Woodson (left) pilfered a Purdue pass on his own eight-yard line in the waning minutes of the second quarter, cut to his left, and dazzled fans with his flying spikes. Speeding down the sidelines, Marv sidestepped several tacklers, stiff-armed another, jittersbugged on the Boilermaker 10-yard stripe while waiting for a blocker, and raced into the end zone with the touchdown that brought the Old Oaken Bucket back to I.U. The Hoosier defense spectacularly stopped the Riveters time after time in the second half to add the finishing touches to one of the biggest upsets of the 1962 gridiron season. Woodson, a junior halfback, paced Indiana's running attack throughout the year. The 6-foot, 190-pound scooter led the team in every offensive department except passing, won a position in the All-Big Ten team, and received recognition in All-American selections of outstanding players.

Smashing victories in the first two games of the season brought a brief note of optimism to the Hoosier camp this year. In the season and home opener against Kansas State University, 20,000 fans saw the Fightin' Hoosiers romp to a 21-0 conquest. Bunching its scoring in the second and third quarters, the gridmen looked quite impressive, but were hurt by the loss of starting end Tony Rocco for the remainder of the season via a knee injury. The following week, Marv Woodson broke loose with two aggressive touchdown runs in the 26-6 victory over the Cincinnati Bearcats. I.U. lineman, Don Croftcheck, basked in a moment of glory when he intercepted a Bearcat pass in the fourth quarter and raced eighteen yards for the final Hoosier tally of the day. Throughout the season, the team scored at least once in every game and, in addition, set the dubious record of most yards penalized by a Big Ten team for a single season's competition. The eagle-eyed men in the striped shirts walked off a total of 688 yards in penalties against the Fightin' Hoosiers this season.

LAVERY NEW HARRIER CHIEF

Inexperience and injuries spoiled the debut of the new cross-country coach, Jim Lavery. Junior Charlie Umbarger, top runner for the Hoosiers, was sidelined for the entire season, and none of the other harriers could fill his speedy shoes. I.U. won only its first dual meet of the year and lost its bid for a fourth consecutive Big State Championship. Art Campbell, Terry Shy and Steve Hibler performed steadily throughout the 1962 season, but failed to get much support from the younger members of the cross-country squad.

WORLD'S FINEST SWIMMERS

"Hurt, pain and agony"—these three words stand behind the accomplishments of the world's finest college swimming team. Every imaginable superlative, and then some, has been used to describe Indiana University's swimmers. Coached by the best in the land, James (Doc) Counsilman, this group of tankmen has set some new record almost every time they dived into a pool. Nine world records, countless others in Big Ten competition, and thirty-one consecutive victories in dual meets are only a few of their many accomplishments. The team roster could easily be confused with a swimmers' Hall of Fame—Jastremski, Stock, Stickles, Schulhof, Nakasone, Schmidt. The only achievement lacking is the coveted NCAA Championship, of which the team has been deprived due to what many consider an unfair ban on I.U. athletics by that organization. This past season, the incomparable mermen swept past nine opponents with ease in dual meets and racked up their third consecutive Big Ten Championship.

INDIANA first in Big Ten Meet

Here come the Hoosiers, streaking down the court with their patented, Branch McCracken-style fast break, and swish—another two points for Indiana. Running and shooting through a rugged twenty-four-game schedule, the I.U. bucketeers won thirteen contests, nine of them over Big Ten foes. At a decided height disadvantage in nearly every game, the Hoosiers battled to a third-place Big Ten finish thanks to high-scoring guard Jimmy Rayl, Most Valuable Player Tom Bolyard, and twin sophomores Tom and Dick Van Arsdale.

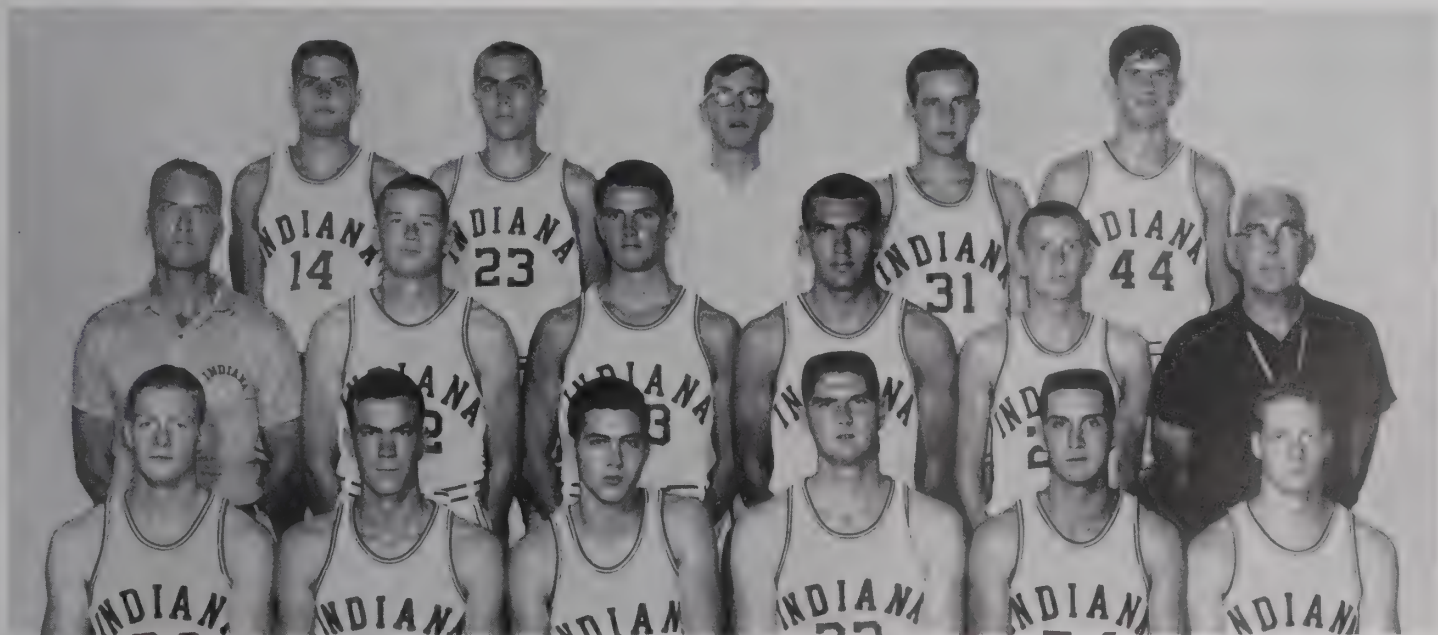

HOOSIER HOOPMEN THIRD IN CONFERENCE

Splendid Splinter Jimmy Rayl (above) and Captain Tom Bolyard (upper right) accounted for thirty I.U. and Big Ten records (Rayl—19, Bolyard—11) in their three years of action. Most significant are Rayl's fifty-six points in a Big Ten game, against Michigan State this year, and Bolyard's .889 shooting per centage, also in the Michigan State duel.

The twins from Indianapolis provided a much-needed rebounding and scoring punch for I.U.'s roundball team this season. Tom (25) and Dick (30) VanArsdale compiled almost identical records in their first year of college and Big Ten competition. Opponents thought they were seeing double as they had to fight both of these 6-feet, 5-inch, 210-pounders underneath the backboards. The "Vans" improved and gained experience with every game, as did other sophomore team members Steve Redenbaugh, Al Harden, and Jon McGlocklin.

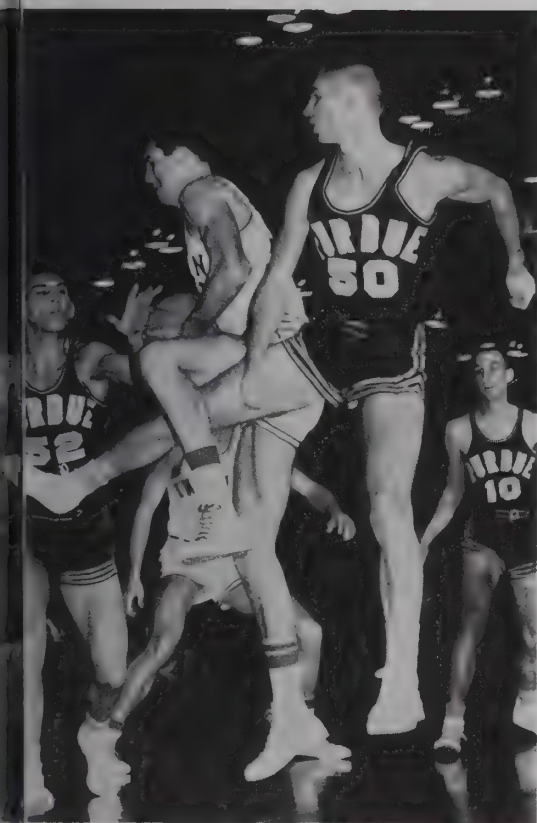

Traveling to unfamiliar territory evidently disagreed with Indiana's 1962-63 basketball squad. Of the five Big Ten losses suffered this past season, four of them were played away from the friendly (to I.U.) atmosphere of the I.U. Fieldhouse. Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan all defeated the Hoosiers on their own home courts. Northwestern's Wildcats were the only Big Ten team to leave this campus with the taste of victory.

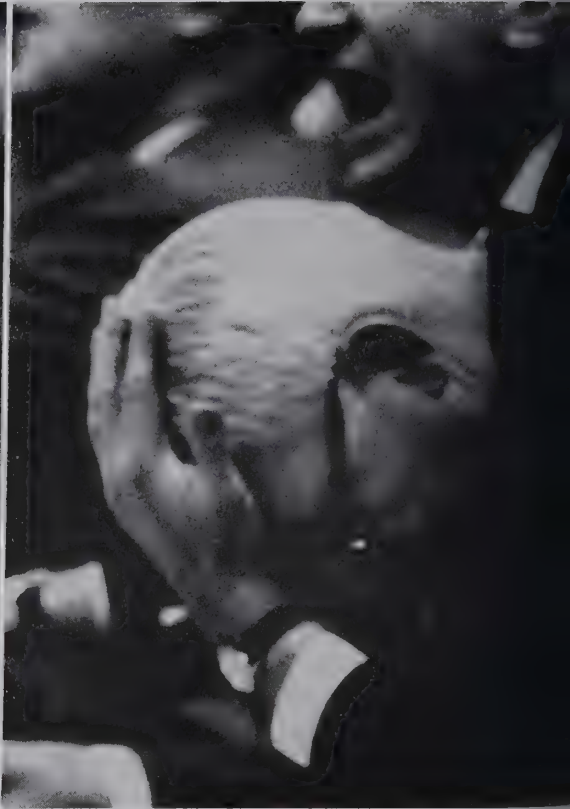

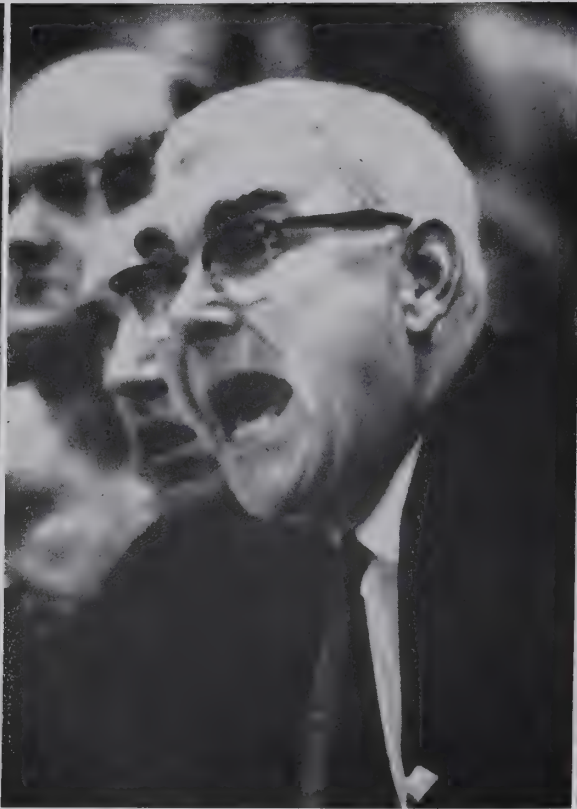

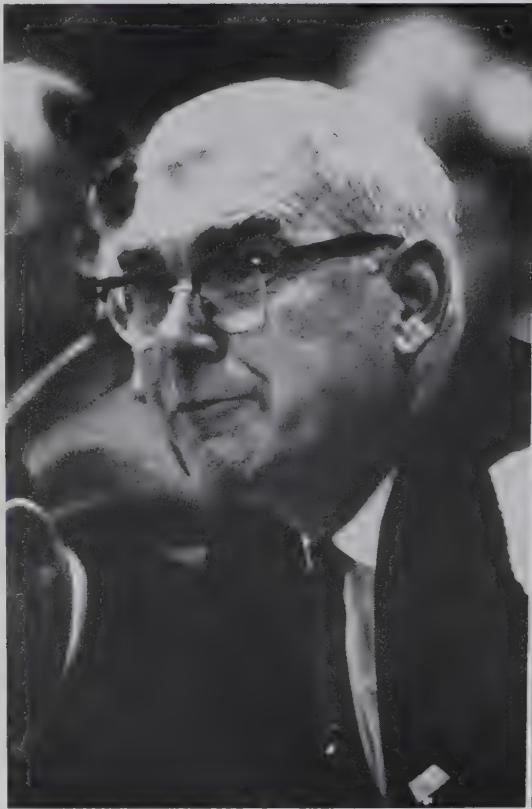

The Hurryin' Hoosiers seldom seemed to get far enough behind to lose, but a glance at the scoreboard in the early stages of most games showed Indiana on the short end of the score. Among the more spectacular comeback victories were the DePaul and Ohio State contests. DePaul brought its nationally-ranked squad to Bloomington, "blew" a seventeen-point lead, and lost on a tip-in by Steve Redenbaugh, 76-75. In perhaps the greatest game of the year, the Hoosiers erased an eleven-point deficit with only six minutes left in the game and won an overtime thriller.

FOES 'PIN' WRESTLERS

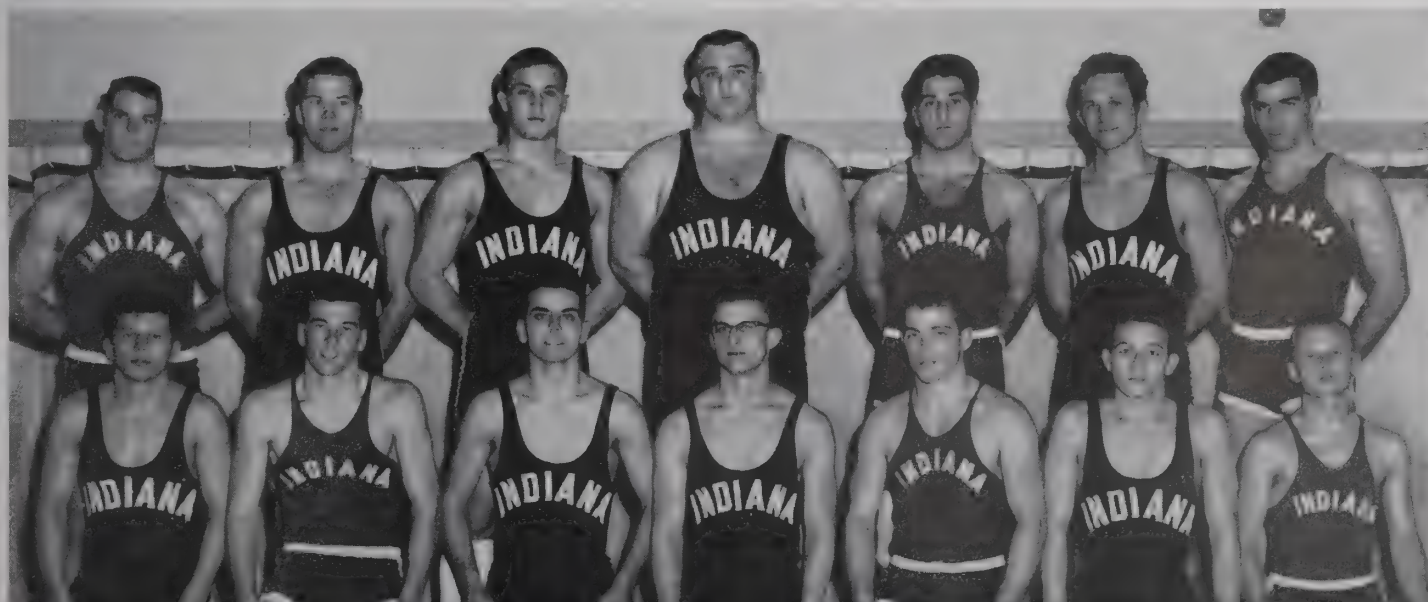

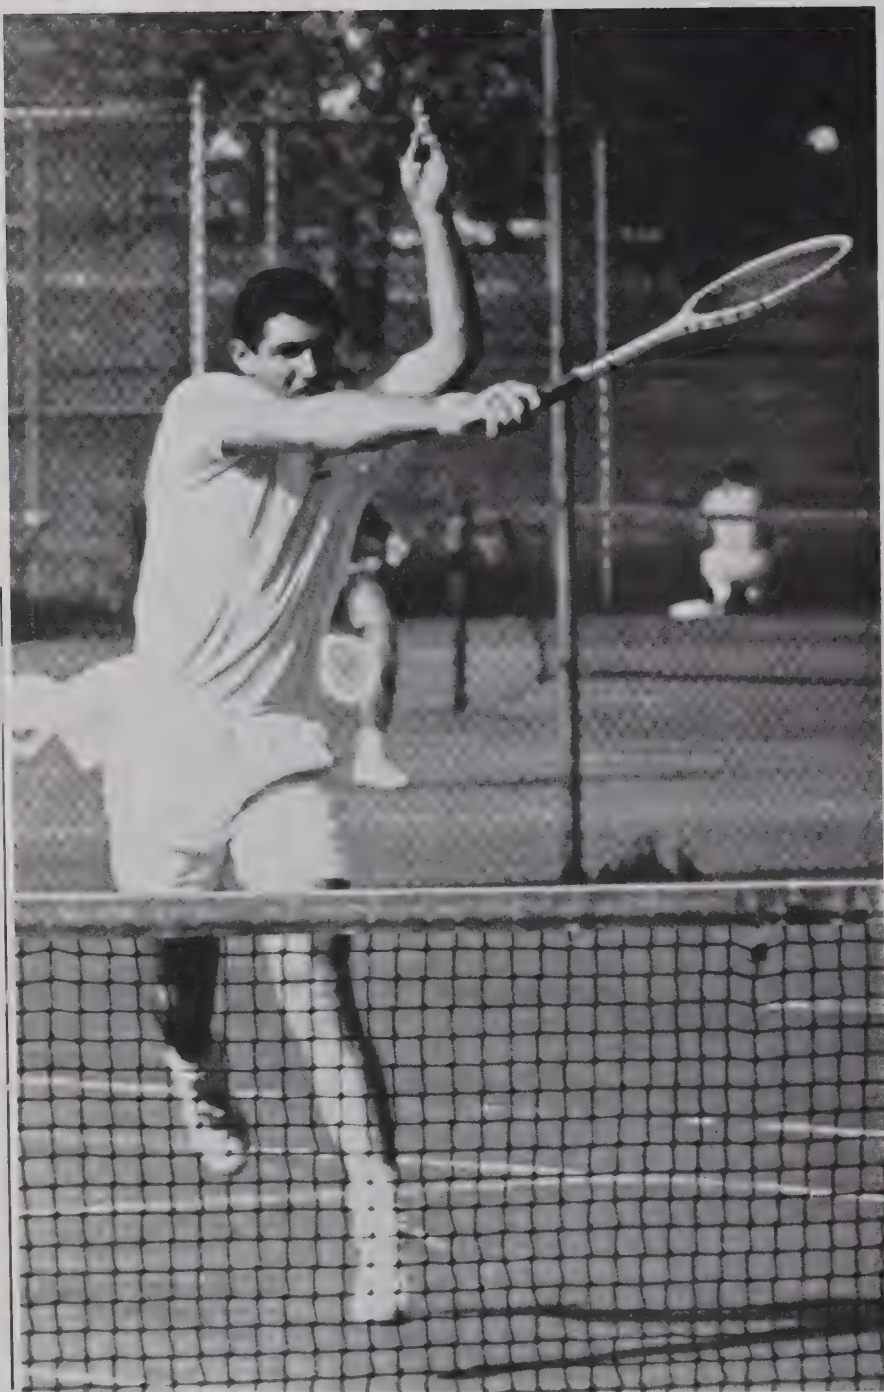

Hit hard by the "flu bug" Indiana University's wrestlers compiled a 2-7 Big Ten record in the 1962-1963 season. After crushing victories over Purdue and Wisconsin early in the year, several team members were struck by influenza and were unable to compete for several weeks. During this time the team lost four consecutive meets. Coach Charles McDaniel's grapplers were paced by Dick Isel and Randy Galvin, both of whom placed second in the Big Ten in their respective weight classes. Sophomore Isel, a bruising 177-pounder, went through the entire season undefeated until the finals of the Conference meet. He lost the championship by one point to Northwestern's Don Evans. Galvin also was outpointed in the finals of the Big Ten meet, in which the Hoosiers totaled twenty-two points for a sixth-place finish.

NETMEN BOUNCE BACK; WIN 14, LOSE 4

Off to a smashing start, the 1962 Indiana University tennis squad rolled past its first six opponents without a defeat. Stuart Cohen, Mike Gordon and number-one man Gary Baxter (left) spearheaded the team in this string of victories. The netmen then suffered a mild "mid-season slump," which included losses to Michigan and Michigan State in Big Ten competition. Coach Bill Landin's men bounced back with four successive wins, including a 9-0 humbling of Ball State. The Big Ten meet at Minneapolis concluded the year for Indiana's netters, and although the Hoosiers placed a disappointing sixth in the meet, their overall 14-4 record is indicative of the success this fine tennis squad has achieved during the season.

Scholastic losses and injuries plagued the charges of Coach Jim Lavery in the 1962 outdoor and 1963 indoor track seasons. Almost every non-winning effort can be attributed to the lack of depth due to the loss of these men. Bright spots of the year included high-jumper Cornelius Miller (right) who placed first and second, respectively, at the outdoor and indoor Big Ten meets. Miller also set new stadium and fieldhouse records in his specialty. Other outstanding point-getters for the I.U. cindermen were broad-jumper Ted Jackson and pole-vaulter Bob Chaffee, shown above soaring over the bar. The team also participated in several invitational meets. In the spring of 1962, the Indiana Relays were inaugurated at Bloomington, and the Hoosiers took top honors, as they did in the Big State Meet earlier in the season.

Twisting, tumbling, spinning, diving, and jumping, Indiana University's gymnasts were victorious in exactly one-half of their fourteen meets in the 1962-63 season. In addition to the competition they met from other teams, Coach Otto Ryser's men also were plagued throughout the year by injuries. On several different occasions men had to compete in more than one event due to the lack of depth caused by injured squad members. Senior Jim (Woody) Woodward finished this season by scoring 306 points which broke his old record of 256½ points.

'62 DIAMOND SQUAD

Win a few, lose a few—this was the pattern that the 1962 Indiana University baseball squad followed. Thirteen returning lettermen formed the nucleus of a pre-season powerhouse that compiled a 16-13 overall record. Plagued by errors in the field and the lack of a big winning pitcher, Coach Ernie Andres' men still earned a respectable fifth-place tie with Michigan State in the Big Ten. The diamondmen sparkled with victories in their first four contests, but then settled into an up-and-down style which prevailed throughout the remainder of the season. The most heartbreaking defeat of the year was a 14-inning, five-hour marathon loss to Iowa, 8-6. The teams battled scorelessly for seven frames before a double by the Iowa Hawkeyes' pitcher drove home the winning tallies of the game.

Scoring seemed to be no problem for the Hoosiers, as they reached double figures in four games. Ball State and Northwestern received the brunt of the Hoosiers' "hot bats" in consecutive 16-4 and 20-3 losses to Indiana. Little Eddie Laduke paced the team in these contests on his way to the Big Ten batting title. His league-leading average was .431. Offensive punch was also supplied by sophomore Terry Ryser, senior Bill Elyea, and slugging outfielder Bart Kaufman.

While compiling a record of two victories in 10 matches in the 1962 season, Indiana University's soccer team showed excellent spirit and enthusiasm. Victories over the University of Dayton and Big Ten opponent Ohio State, along with double-overtime loss to Purdue highlighted the year for the I. U. booters. Sophomore Paul Bitarabebo led the team in scoring with four goals. Coach Terry Jackson's prospects for the future appear bright, as only one man, Captain Greg Yepremian will be lost due to graduation.

BIG TEN CHAMPS Capturing the Big Ten championship capped a very successful season for the 1962 I.U. golf team. Winners compiled a total of 1509 strokes, led by junior Phil White's 72-hole score of 298. The Hoosiers racked up a record of 10 wins and two losses over the year in individual meets, losing only to Miami University in their opening meet and to Northwestern in the final tri-angular meet. The Big Ten victory then climaxed the season. The year 1962 also saw the initiation of a winter training program, which was designed to keep the golf team in top physical condition.

Indiana University's fencing team showed a 200 per cent improvement over last year's performance by winning two meets in the 1962-63 season. Sponsored by the Physical Education Department, the swordsmen broke a long losing streak with a fifth place tie in the Big Ten Championships at Michigan State. Rex Green, top point-winner for the Hoosiers throughout the year, won fourth place medalist honors at that meet, and Captain Walt Hathaway copped eighth spot in sabre competition. Spirit and desire prevailed at all times, according to first-year coach Stan Patterson, and a few more notches in the victory column are predicted for next year's team.

Total points compiled in each of four quadrangular meets determines the final standings of the various teams. Coached by Captain N. T. Jaco of the Army R.O.T.C. Department, I.U.'s riflemen fared well in team and individual competition. Team captain Tom Lawson tied for seventh in overall individual points, and Mitchell Byrne placed fourth in overall.

ORWIG IN SECOND YEAR AS DIRECTOR

Behind the scenes of all athletic activity affiliated with Indiana University is the Athletic Department. Athletic Director J. W. (Bill) Orwig (left) and his huge staff are in charge of scheduling for all intercollegiate athletics in which I.U. participates. They also handle innumerable other administrative details. The Publicity Department, under the able guidance of Tom Miller (below), administers all publicity and promotions for I.U.'s teams, in addition to keeping a vast store of statistics and records. Dr. Edwin Cady (above) is the newest member of the Athletic Department, having been appointed Indiana's Faculty Representative to the Big Ten. He replaced John Mee, who had served in that capacity for eleven years.

Promoting sportsmanship and support of I.U.'s athletic teams by the Student Body is the main function of the Senior Athletic Board. This purpose is carried out through pep rallies, parades, and various other spirit-building activities. This past year the Board purchased the Crimson Crate, a red truck equipped with a loudspeaker, to aid in backing the athletic squads. The card section which performs colorful card formations at home football games is under the jurisdiction of the Board.

I-M GOAL: FUN AND COMPETITION

The watchful eyes of Indiana University's Intramural director, Robert Stumpner, guide a most extensive and successful program. Throughout the year, students participate in the 45-50 events under the jurisdiction of his department. Seemingly insurmountable scheduling tasks for the hundreds of leagues which compete each year are taken in stride by Mr. Stumpner, his chief assistant Terry Jackson, and their small staff. Added to the program this year were clinics for officials in the three major campus sports: football, basketball, and softball.

ALPHA PHI

Alpha Phi sorority went pioneer with their "Backwoods Bounce" pledge dance, and teamed up with Sigma Chi fraternity to win first place for best game of chance at Fall Carnival with their "Ghoul-It." Phi's Dads' Day was successful despite Hoosiers' loss to Michigan State University. Phis and Phi Gamma Delta fraternity worked together on Little 500 activities.

Edward L. Morris (Pledge Trainer), Neil R. Brooks (Soc. Chair.), David Kimjon Lockhart (Vice-Pres.).

The Alpha Phi Alphas sponsored various dances and parties over the year. A Homecoming dance began the season. Another highlight for the Alpha Phi Alphas was their fifty-sixth annual Founder's Day Program commemorating the founding of their fraternity. Little 500 was a big weekend for the group, beginning with a picnic and ending with their annual Spring Formal.

PHI EPSILON PI

Internal development with concentration on grades and cultural events is the goal of the Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity. Experts in varied fields are invited to speak at their house. The men had an inferno fling, "Go to Hell Party," this fall, and the "Soki Hop" in the spring. Next year they plan to break ground for their new fraternity house on North Jordan Avenue.

Brotherhood is stressed in the Phi Gamma Delta house. The annual Fiji-Delta Delta Delta party for underprivileged children was held before Christmas. The men sponsored a "Purple Garter" dance with a Parisian theme in February, and their biggest dance of the year, "Fiji Isle," was in the spring. Their co-sponsor in Little 500 was the Alpha Phi sorority.

Junior Panhellenic Council members sponsored a Greek orphan again this year, aided in the Bloomington Cancer Drive, and contributed food baskets to the Senior Citizen House at Christmas. Composed of pledge class presidents from all sororities, the members of Junior Panhel strive to improve the pledge system by stressing scholarship and planning co-ordinated activities.

Interfraternity Council, whose members are representatives from all fraternities, sponsors many projects which promote co-operation among the fraternities. This year the council organized rush registration, distributed brochures about campus fraternities, and sponsored a smoker for fraternity men and members of the University administration interested in fraternity affairs.

A pledge class smoker and the tug of war across the Jordan River are two of the major events annually sponsored by the Junior Interfraternity Council. Both events help to improve relations among the pledges and between the pledges and active members of the fraternities. Scholarship and improvement of the pledge program rank high among the goals of the Junior IFC.

BIG DORMITORIES

FROM LITTLE PUDDLES

Inter-Residence Halls Association, organized in the spring of 1960, strives to build unity among the residence halls. IRHA contains three levels of government: hall, center, and inter-residence units. The center government, composed of an executive council and cabinet, correlates activities of individual center units. Each unit has a legislative and judicial board.

FOSTER QUADRANGLE

Foster Quadrangle, I.U.'s newest and most modern dormitory, welcomed its first occupants this year. In the fall, boys lived in two of four unfinished men's dorms. Hardships included eating in Wright Quad and being disturbed by sounds of machinery. Second semester, the completed nine-floor women's dorm housed the overflow of girls from other campus housing.

GRADUATE RESIDENCE CENTER

The Graduate Residence Center grew this year with the addition of Hershey Hall and Stempel Hall. GRC is made up of ten residence halls, a dining hall, and a lounge, with a separate library to be added next year. The GRC Council, the legislative body, governed the center. Movies, dances, and picnics were held for the residents, a third of whom are foreign students.

In its second year of being a residence dormitory, the Men's Residence Center housed nearly 450 students. The young men ranged from freshmen to seniors. Three buildings—Edmonson, Cravens, and Smith—make up MRC. The football team stays as a unit at Cravens Hall. This year, MRC gave several dances, including one at the Frangipani Room of the Memorial Union.

A drive to improve living conditions in Men's Residence Center this year brought pleasing results. New equipment for the unit's student government, publication of a handbook for unit governors, and a center paper, "The Tower," were realized. Topping the list of social activities were a reception for the cast of "Sound of Music," a Valentine dance, and exchange dinners.

READ CENTER

Read Center girls go "Gun Ho," starting with a well-organized Orientation Week program. After movies and talks, newcomers felt a part of "Ole I.U." Their year's activities included participating in Fall Carnival, an all-fraternity mixer, I.U. Sing, "Little 500," center dances, Pixie Week, and other programs. The center showered gifts on a needy family at Christmas.

Dedication ceremonies for the four wings of Daniel Read Hall, women's residence center, were conducted this fall. The center was named after Daniel Read in recognition for his outstanding support of women's rights. Appropriately, the wings were named after University women graduates, Lena Adams Beck, Emma Jennings Clark, Jennie Foster Curry, and Bertha Knight Landes.

Weatherwax Hall distinguishes itself from other women's housing by being a co-operative dormitory. Considered part of Wells Quadrangle, the hall houses thirty-two girls of several nationalities. These students studied in a large third floor lounge and slept in a single dormitory. To show off their campus home, the girls gave an open house during the Spring.

WRIGHT QUADRANGLE

WRIGHT STATION WQAD

Radio Station WQAD went on the air January 5, 1963, to provide Wright Quadrangle residents with twenty-four hour programming. Using the carrier-wave system, the fifty-watt station can only be received within the Quad through its electrical wiring. Bill Weaverling and Steve Peterson are the co-directors of the project, which offers a variety of programs.

Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society for men, has been one of the most active groups on campus since it received its original charter on April 3, 1914. Besides conducting professional meetings with prominent newsmen throughout this area, the SDX's sponsor two of the University's oldest traditional events — the Blanket Hop and the Gridiron Banquet.

SIGMA THETA TAU

Sigma Theta Tau, the national nursing society, annually awards scholarships to students in the University's nursing programs. The honorary selects candidates from students studying for a bachelor's or master's degree in the School of Nursing. New members are initiated at a formal banquet held in the spring. Regular meetings are held on the Medical School campus.

With the largest enrollment of any medical students' organization in the United States, the I.U. Student American Medical Association operates a second hand book store and sells white coats at reduced rates for all medical students. At fall registration, the members sponsor Pharmaceutical Day including exhibits from pharmaceutical companies, a speaker, and program.

FOUNDATION DIRECTS '500' WEEKEND

Comes the countdown for the Little 500, and another group of I.U. Student Foundation members see results of their efforts. Selected from among outstanding student leaders, the Foundation's staff, working with director William S. Armstrong, plans the Little 500 Weekend. The committees plan and publicize the Golf Jamboree, Mini tricycle race, the Extravaganza, the race itself, and the Little 500 Variety Show. They create the "World's Greatest College Weekend."

IMU

Among the most dynamic and imaginative people at I.U. are the twelve student members of the Indiana Memorial Union Board of Directors. Assisted by the advice of a professional adult staff, they plan and organize 600 campus functions ranging from art displays to a sailing club; from folk dancing to the elegant Inaugural Ball. Certain activities annually sponsored by the Board promote competition among housing units—matching ingenuity for Fall Carnival, or knowledge in the Campus Quiz Bowl. The Board member delegates responsibility for each activity in his area to committees, in order to give leadership experience to as many students as possible. To be eligible for selection to Union Board, a student must have worked 100 hours in Union activities, and he must be of junior or senior standing with 2.6 cumulative grade average. Ten members are chosen each year by student and administration officials; two are elected by the Student Body.

YWCA CABINET

YWCA's local theme, "To strive . . to seek . . to find . . and not to yield," has been faithfully followed this year through its well-known projects of Freshman Camp, I.U. Sing, and Chimes of Christmas. Its new program of the year, the International Bazaar, was greeted with great enthusiasm. The YWCA's many off-campus service projects greatly benefit the community.

THE STUDENT SERVES

A laboratory newspaper, The Indiana Daily Student has served the campus community since 1867, first as a weekly tabloid, now a full-size, six or eight page daily. Students enrolled in journalism get practical experience while producing a daily account of happenings on campus, in the city, the state, and the world. The Student this year "went modern" in its make-up when column rules were dropped to give more white space, and lower case headlines and a more horizontal format were used to complete the face-lifting. Staffs are changed each semester and students apply for positions just as they would on a professional paper. Staff members—editors, reporters, and photographers—receive credit hours for their efforts in disseminating news.

BIG THREE PLUS TWO SPEND MANY HOURS ON ARBUS

Twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year with spring vacation off for good behavior—that is what it seems to take to produce an all-America Arbutus. Staffs have done it for four consecutive years. Revamping the format of the yearbook this year, Judy Stevens (opposite, right), senior, Editor-in-Chief, created or supervised all layouts and planned the book. Assisting her with the $59,000 project were Myrna Oliver (opposite, left), junior, Managing Editor, and Jim Turner, (above), senior, Business Manager. CENTENARIAN-ALUM RELIVES DAYS AT ALMA MATER

Back in time . . . space compressed . . . energy potential. The I.U. of the late 1800's is described by Russell Ratliff, '92. Mr. Ratliff became 100 years old on January 25, and, as I.U.'s oldest living alumnus, he talks of the University and of life back then in letters to the Alumni Association. Accompanying photographs of the campus are from old issues of the Arbutus.

For a number of years it has seemed to me that, if one lives with reasonable thoughtfulness, and, with reasonable earnestness, that, along toward the end, he should be able to say something that would be of some interest to some other wayfarer. It need not be long . . . possibly only a single word. Now, I am ready to try.

To begin, I will put it in the form of a will: "My goodwill I bequeath to the Human Race, in as far as they believe in, and live in, Peace and Harmony, regardless of Race, Color, or Nationality; and, to my Mother Nature, from whom I receive, alike, my bounty and my doom. Life has been and is, full and rich to me; the years have been kind. And now, I will condense it further, into one word: Character."

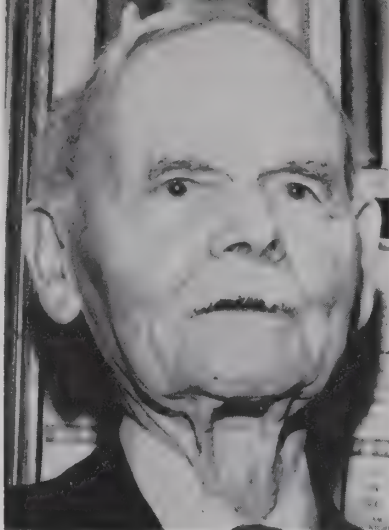

The experience of being the oldest living alumnus of Indiana University is distinctly interesting to me! My memories of Indiana University are rich. I am pleased to be an old man; that is agreeable to me. I do not find it monotonous. There has not been a day since Commencement Day in June 1892, but

The "old campus" (below) was finished in 1836, only to be destroyed by fire in 1854. Alumni raised $10,000 and rebuilt the school, but lightning struck and destroyed the science building in 1883. A 13,000-volume library was lost as well as physical and chemical apparatus and the private library of Dr. Jordon. (One of these buildings remains today as the center structure of Bloomington High School—see page 497.) In 1883 it was decided to move the campus to the area known as "Dunn's Woods."

The University had 497 students and 37 professors in 1892 when Mr. Ratliff was graduated. Bloomington was a thriving metropolis of 5,000. First buildings erected on the "new site" were Owen and Wylie Halls in 1884. A Library Building (later named Maxwell) and an Assembly Hall-Gymnasium followed during the 1890's.

what I have been glad to have had the four years at Indiana University from 1888 to 1892.

About that time, the health of the University got considerably better. Money came. Students came. Indiana University began rapidly to climb to an honored place among the schools of our nation. Because of Dr. Jordan's (President David Starr Jordan) foresight, the elective system gained strength, and self government by the students was begun. For the many "thou shalt nots" our predecessors lived by, there were substituted but two: "No student shall set fire to a building, or shoot a professor."

Dr. Jordan, who left in 1891, taking with him many of the able teachers he had gathered around him, wanted to be remembered. Spanker's Branch was as mean, as devilish a little actor as was around those parts. Its area was the portion of Bloomington that Dr. Jordan elected to bear his name. They call it, now, the Jordan River.

Coeds were an accepted part of the Student Body when I went to college. Discipline for the women was a relatively simple matter when Dean Louise Goodbody came to supervise them in 1891. The University was so small then and public opinion so potent that only the very weak or the very dare-devil broke ranks anyway. And one of her successors, we hear, favored the wearing of bloomers and sent out a decree that all women provide for themselves and wear the dainties. The Phi Delts were so tickled by the edict that they made an Maxwell Hall (right) housed the 40,000-volume University library as well as the Law School. Aside from academics, students took an active interest in sports. A "foot ball" (two words then) game between I.U. and Notre Dame is pictured below. The coach was called "coacher." Base ball, track and field, golf—first college golf team in the state—and tennis were added to the athletic schedule toward the close of the century. Basketball was not formally organized until 1901.

"The fire (in Wylie Hall, 1900) furnished an excellent opportunity for numbers of the crowd too become excited . . . There was a certain English instructor there . . . He attempted to assist firemen . . . and quite naturally he got his fingers muddy . . . He was in the greatest state of mental agony . . ."—from the 1900 Arbutus.

enormous pair of red calico ones and stretched them on the Pi Phi lawn.

One of the problems in the old days was mud. The editors of The Student lamented the trouble the townspeople had in attending functions of the University: they couldn't get from the edge of the campus to Assembly Hall because of the mud. We students had our own delightful solution when the Board Walk was built from Kirkwood Hall out to the new Forest Place and the new Alpha Hall where the girls resided.

We had a favorite fountain place, too—a well that some wealthy alumnus later built a house around. Water from the productive little well, they tell me, put out one of the University's many serious fires around the turn of the century. And then they came along later and built a house around it and covered up the well.

Dean Goodbody had a habit of saying "What this campus needs is traditions." Well, we had a few, even in my day, and some of them grew bigger after we left. Down in front of the Old College Building, we had our own Sun Dial—the same one that was moved later to the main campus. We didn't know then about the couple who met there and later had their ashes scattered there, but we did laugh about old President (Cyrus) Nutt who one night lit a match to see what time it was.

Mitchell Hall (above) was originally called Maxwell, until the Library Building was given that name in 1894. It was built in 1885 and used as a chapel, for recreation, and for office space. Part of this structure comprises the old Fine Arts Center today.

We used the Old College building just for the largest meetings, then, having our own gymnasium or Assembly Hall, as it was called, right on our own campus. We studied in Wylie Hall, Owen Hall, Maxwell Hall, and a frame building used as an observatory. We had a chapel, too, and it was never large enough to accommodate all who wanted to attend.

We were always interested in athletic games, and had good base ball and foot ball teams, although at some times The Student was necessarily moved to report that the foot ball manager was instructed to obtain a good coacher to avoid the trouble in the past. One time all the athletes signed an agreement not to use tobacco, and it looked like they meant business. When we were graduated, the University had 497 students and thirty-seven instructors, most of them full professors. And at the time, although money had been scarce in the first years of the University, all departments received all the appropriations they asked for.

I am pleased that I did not die at seventy-five; would have missed a lot of the best part. Not a day passes that I don't appreciate having had four years at Indiana. The last work I did was office work for the City of Spokane (Washington); from March 1913 to the end of October 1938. Since then, I have not been making a living, but doing the living; and liking it, even still better. I think of my extended years as due, largely, to the cheerful life I have lived; especially through my grown up years. Friendliness, has gone right along with that.

It seems to me that the different periods of my life fit in well together. It may be that my life might have been more fully rounded out in some ways. But, I do not see that I have missed anything that is entirely essential . . . I will never get back to Indiana again. I find plenty to exercise my faculties wherever I may be; and do not feel cramped. I find the essentials of a good life wherever I may be. I select their qualities that serve my purpose wherever I may be . . . The qualities of life itself continue to grow finer and richer to me. I am well pleased to be living the life of an old man!!! For several months I have some of the experiences of old age. It takes different forms. There is a letdown of memory. Some of the words in common use are not at hand when I want to use them. They will likely come back. There is less enthusiasm in living . . .

Not a day passes that I don't appreciate having had four years at Indiana University.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND THANKS

The 1963 Arbutus was composed and printed by C. E. Pauley & Co., Inc., Indianapolis. Copy blocks are set in 12-point Tempo Metrolite, identifications in 8-point Tempo Metrolite, index in 6-point Tempo Metrolite, sports scores in 12-point Tempo Metroblack, and the headlines in 18-point Tempo Metroblack. The paper is 80-pound Production Gloss, manufactured by Consolidated Water Power and Paper Co., Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. Associates Engraving Co., Inc., Springfield, Ill., made the engravings, using a 133 screen for halftones.

Senior portraits were done by the Delma Studio, New York City, and covers by the S. K. Smith Co., Chicago. For their co-operation we would like to thank Richard Merriman of Pauley's, Richard Brier of Associates, S. M. Fields of Delma, and Jack Bundy of the Smith Company. Also, the Indiana University Board of Student Publications; Prof. John E. Stemmel, our adviser; Barney Cowherd, our photography adviser, and all members of the major and general staffs of the 1963 Arbutus.

Judy, Myrna, and Jim
